

SILVER ORDERED MADE PROPERTY OF GOVERNMENT

ALL PRECIOUS METALS TAKEN OVER BY U.S.

Domestic Stocks To Be Delivered In 90 Days

By Benjamin Colby
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Aug. 9.—(P)—President Roosevelt today ordered silver made the property of the government. Immediately metals moved upward and Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said the step forecast the beginning of a "new era of prosperity."

The presidential decree means the completion of the taking over of the nation's supplies of precious metals, begun by gold nationalization last year. Domestic stocks of silver, with some exceptions, are to be delivered to the treasury within 90 days. The price to be paid is 50.91 cents an ounce.

Grant Authority
Apart from its implications, some said, the nationalization of silver lacked unusual significance. The authority to take over the metal was granted in the act passed by the last congress. It had been predicted on several occasions.

Then too, the supply which the treasury will acquire is estimated at between 50,000,000 and 200,000,000 ounces. The treasury will issue notes amounting only to the money paid out for the stocks. Consequently, additional currency to be issued will be small, comparatively speaking.

But Thomas interpreted the action to mean that silver is "at last primary money." Nationalization, he added, could bring only the "overthrow of the world wide gold bloc."

He confidently predicted an international monetary agreement affecting both precious metals and called off a speaking tour he had arranged to urge additional currency inflation.

It was the Oklahoman's view that silver could be nationalized only if it were regarded as "primary money." "This means," he said, "that the strongest and richest nation has decided to make a wider use of silver as money. This will cause other nations to adopt a similar policy."

Secretary Morgenthau made no comment on the reasons for the nationalization, merely saying: "I'm relieved that it's all over." He said nothing when told that Thomas charged that the recent sharp rise in the price of silver showed there had been a "leak" as to the treasury's intention.

It was pointed out, however, that silver is approaching a world price of 50 cents an ounce and that under the silver purchase act the price the government can pay for domestic supplies is a maximum of 50.91 cents.

Some observers said continued treasury buying to carry out the mandate of the law, which specified that the supply of silver maintained as a "gold standard" should be one-third that of gold, might force the world price above 50 cents. In that event, it was asserted, there would be a temptation to smuggle domestic silver out of the country. Nationalization would prevent that.

The hope of President Roosevelt for an international monetary conference to arrive at an understanding on both gold and silver was plainly shown in his message to congress urging the silver legislation under which the metal was nationalized.

Many of the senators who with Thomas strove for the passage of silver legislation last session, said they were not particularly interested in nationalization—that it meant little.

One interpretation was that the

Will Not Disturb Outdoor Sleepers In Kansas City

Kansas City, Aug. 9.—(P)—Kansas City residents who would have their neighbors wear more clothing on hot nights when they sleep outdoors or in full view of passersby, need not go to police Chief Robert J. Coffey with any complaints.

"It's no use trying to sleep inside," Chief Coffey said. "I've moved my bed out in the backyard and sleep there every night. Only persons of prudish tendencies are likely to complain. Of course, they may be justified in some instances, but for the most part, the police will not disturb the outdoor sleepers."

CLAIM BIG SUM NECESSARY FOR CODE EXPENSES

Expect To Collect 35 Millions From The Members Of NRA

Washington, Aug. 9.—(P)—The government has spent $7,820,660 on NRA to date and industries and businesses have been asked for an additional $35,000,000 to pay the operating expenses of their various codes.

Officials said today NRA had given full or conditional approval to the expenditure of $9,500,000 for codes and was busy checking the requests of code authorities for the collection of the remainder of the $35,000,000 from code members.

Most of the budgets include expenditures contemplated by the code authorities to the end of 1934 or the spring of 1935.

Balanced against costs on the books of the NRA are its estimates that the codes have added $3,000,000 to the nation's buying power and given jobs to 2,000,000 persons and that other benefits have accrued also.

Officials said the $7,820,660 covered "everything" since the NRA was established in mid-June, 1933.

Of that sum, they said, $3,929,164 went for regular payrolls and other members of the staff employed on a per diem basis. Salaries of state directors and other field employees also were included.

With $320,000 completed and code-making scheduled to end this week, some reduction in government outlays for the NRA was predicted.

UNDERWORLD HAS STOLEN 1027 GUNS FROM GUARDSMEN

23,110 Rounds of Ammunition Also Missing From 23 State Armories

Washington, Aug. 9.—(P)—The underworld has stolen 1,027 guns—ten of them deadly machine guns—and 23,110 rounds of ammunition from national guard armories in 29 states since Jan. 1, 1932.

William Stanley, acting attorney general, said today: At the same time he revealed that the department of justice has asked the war department to prevail upon state governors to end these thefts.

Stanley reminded that the federal machine gun law which takes effect tomorrow is intended to close fire-arms channels to the criminal.

ROOSEVELT SAYS 'NEW DEAL' IS GOING AHEAD

Government Intends No Injury To Honest Business

By Francis M. Stephenson
Associated Press Staff Writer
Aboard Roosevelt train, Fond Dulac, Wis., Aug. 9.—(P)—President Roosevelt came out of the northwest tonight with the firm declaration to "the people of the United States" that the "new deal" is going ahead.

To business men of the nation the president gave the reassuring pledge: "This government intends no injury to honest business." Speaking in deliberate and emphatic voice to another of the many hopeful throngs to meet him at Green Bay, Wis., he declared "in one year and five months, the people of the United States have received at least a partial answer to their demands for action and neither the demand nor the action has reached the end of the road."

With this stout word he hastened tonight from the stricken area of this great section to the White House where he arrives tomorrow to take over his desk after a lengthy and intensive inspection of the nation.

Obviously casting aside old political lines, the president thanked "Bob" LaFollette, Republican independent up for re-election this year on a new party ticket, and Ray Duffy, Democratic Senator elected with him in 1932 from Wisconsin, for their "excellent cooperation" in the administration program.

The crowd stretching far out in the bright sunshine of Bay Beach Park, applauded in approval as he remarked:

"In the great national movement that culminated in 1932, people joined with enthusiasm. They lent hand and voice to the common cause, irrespective of many old political traditions. They saw the dawn of a new day. They were on the march, they were coming back into the possession of their own homeland."

"These high purposes must be accompanied by cooperation among those charged by the people with the duties of government. I am glad to be in a state from which I have greatly drawn in setting up the permanent and temporary agencies of government."

Traveling down Lake Michigan shore during the hot afternoon and around Chicago on the stretch home tonight, the president again was met by huge throngs at every cross road and city.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary to the president, reported he was receiving stacks of messages of response to the presidential speech at every stop.

Mr. Roosevelt took notice of critics and particularly those asking for a message of confidence.

"There is no lack of confidence on the part of those businessmen, farmers, and workers who clearly read the signs of the times," he asserted. "Sound economic improvement comes from the improved conditions of the whole population and not a small fraction thereof."

"Those who would measure confidence in this country in the future must look first to the average citizen."

2 GANGSTERS AT ST. LOUIS HELP IN MURDER CASE

"Blackie" Arms And Pal Are Indicted For Killing Kidnap Witness

St. Louis, Aug. 8.—(P)—Monroe (Blackie) Arms and John R. (Bab) Moran, St. Louis gangsters, were indicted today by a St. Louis county grand jury on a charge of murdering John C. Johnson, negro, star witness for the prosecution in the Kelly kidnaping case.

Johnson, in whose shack a gang allegedly held Dr. Isaac D. Kelly, St. Louis physician, during a 1931 kidnaping, was killed with machine gun fire last May 12 as he sat on the steps at the home of a deputy sheriff where he was staying for safe keeping.

NEW DEAL IS ATTACKED BY REPUBLICANS

Roosevelt Policies Are Denounced At Springfield

By Robert P. Howard
Associated Press Staff Writer
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 9.—(P)—A strong attack upon the New Deal and the Democratic state and Chicago administrations is to be the basis of Republican appeals for November votes.

The platform, adopted without dissent, followed the general pattern of speeches at today's Republican convention. There was no direct personal attack upon President Roosevelt, but his policies were denounced. Virtually every activity of the Horner state administration was condemned.

The Chicago Democratic organization was described as corrupt. Regeneration, the NRA, the farm program, labor policies and administration of relief were attacked in planks dealing with national affairs.

Oppose Sales Tax
For the state campaign, the GOP promised to oppose continuation of the retail sales tax.

Only a few changes were made by the convention committee which received the tentative draft agreed upon last night by the party leaders.

In its final form, there were no objections to ratification of the platform. Only a few delegates were in the coliseum at the time, most of them having deserted the steaming building when National Chairman Fletcher completed his assault upon the New Deal.

One of the major changes in the 34 planks was to strengthen the one on the sales tax, which was described as an "effort to shift the burden of taxation from those with ability to pay to those least able to pay."

"Insurance companies and holders of Illinois property residing outside the state escape taxation while the burden is shifted to the Illinois wage earner," the document continued.

"The sales tax places a burden on the bearing and rearing of children. It is a penalty on the basic institution of the nation—the home."

The state administration was described as a "despotic, tax-eating Democratic machine" and the Republicans denounced the election of Mayor Kelly of Chicago on the city council.

Also condemned was the "corrupt, open alliance between the Nash-Kelly political machine of Chicago and the syndicated and commercialized gambling, vice and liquor privileges."

One per cent tax rate limitation, rejected by the governor, also was espoused by the Republicans as a campaign issue.

Among other planks, the platform asked: "That the gasoline tax revenues be used on highways only. Proposed automobile license fees be cut in half. Requested a 'trustworthy state accounting and auditing system.'"

Favored civil service laws, which the Democrats are charged with violating.

Proposed recognition of the Illinois commerce commission. Approved home rule for municipalities.

FLETCHER LEADS AN ATTACK ON FDR'S NEW DEAL

Chief Of Police Wants His Men To Work On Time

Okla. City, Aug. 9.—(P)—Chief of police John Watt likes his policemen on time—but not in a hurry about it.

Patrolman Jake Robertson, stepping on the gas to get to the station on time, didn't see Chief Watt this morning, but Watt saw him.

So when Robertson reported there was a speeding charge against him, "Judge," said patrolman Robertson, "I don't know how fast I was driving. My eyes were on the traffic, not the speedometer."

Police Judge Mike Foster postponed the case because Chief Watt didn't get to court on time.

3 DROWN WHEN DELUGE SWEEPS DENVER RESORT

Eighteen Missing As Mountain Section Is Hard Hit

Denver, Aug. 9.—(P)—Lashed into fury by a sudden cloudburst, streams in the mountains west of Denver swept at least three persons to death today.

From five to 18 persons were reported missing. The dead included John Hubbard, of Denver, whose wife was unaccounted for; an unidentified 16-year-old girl and an unidentified boy.

Hubbard was swept away by a wall of water that roared down the canyon between Idlewild and Starbuck. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shields and their daughter, Mrs. Margaret Bejel Frew, fled from Hubbard's motor car as they heard the roar of the torrents.

They were taken to a nearby summer residence where they said a car containing five persons had driven up behind Hubbard's stalled machine and tried to push his car to start it.

Searchers were unable to find this auto and the five were counted among the missing.

Six Denver girls, who in first reports were said to have been battered off a small footbridge when they were caught in the path of the onrushing steam near Morrison, later were reported safe.

Another early report being checked was that a party of four campers, who had been vacationing near Morrison, could not be located after the storm.

Shanghai, Aug. 9.—(P)—Half a million Chinese men, women and children, peasants of central Anhwei province, were reported today by Chinese official sources to be facing starvation as the result of the most severe drought in Central China in more than half a century.

Information reaching the national government from the afflicted province, which appears to be the most severely stricken among those comprising the heart of the nation, stated that these 500,000 persons are virtually without food and water.

The food supplies of the province are continuing to shrink under the merciless heat and drought.

The food supplies of the province are continuing to shrink under the merciless heat and drought.

These helpless sufferers, while apparently more immediately facing death than those in other areas, constitute but a relatively small proportion of the literally millions of persons throughout China afflicted in varying degrees.

Temperatures over a great portion of the country have reached such levels as 115 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit for weeks at a time, day and night. Expected rains failed to materialize.

Near Foochow a cloudburst occurred causing a fifty-foot wall of water to rush down the Ingial river, sweeping villages before it. How many lives were lost was impossible to say.

One town of considerable size was reported to have been completely disappeared.

G.O.P. CHAIRMAN ASKS VOTES FOR SOUND POLICIES

Opens His Midwestern Drive Against Democrats

By Milburn P. Akers
Associated Press Staff Writer
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 9.—(P)—Leading an attack upon the New Deal in 108 fervent heat, Republican National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher today asked November votes for "the party of sound economic policies."

Fletcher was one of twenty speakers before the Republican National convention, held on the hottest day in Springfield's history.

In starting the midwestern drive against the Democrats, Fletcher concentrated on President Roosevelt, charging that campaign promises have been violated, that the NRA and AAA have failed and that unprecedented expenditures in the name of recovery have failed to produce results.

Divide Fire

Other orators divided their fire, denouncing the Democratic state and Chicago administrations as well as Washington officialdom.

Platform recommendations condemned the policies of the ruling Democrats, but made no direct attack upon the president.

Enthusiasm was unblighted by tropical temperatures as the Illinois Republicans laid plans to return to political power. Estimates were that ten thousand persons packed themselves into the fair grounds coliseum to sit through the long orations.

Speaking in the corn belt, Fletcher said: "A new bird, 'The Black Crow,' was placed in the political picture along with the 'Blue Eagle'."

Fletcher said the Democrats might require every farmer to paint a black crow on his gate post as a condition to getting government money.

"This may sound like a lot of political hooey, but it is no more fanciful than what has been done with the Blue Eagle, the badge of industrial servitude," the Republican leader declared.

"American liberty ought not to be sold, even to one's government."

He asked why money should be spent to "prime the pump" if there is no indication that it operate on its own.

"In the Good Old Summer Time" was sung spontaneously by the sweltering but good natured delegates as an interlude in the proceedings.

Word had just reached the coliseum that it was 108, the all-time record here. Inside the hall, thermometers registered 112.

Convention day brought a personal victory for Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, state chairman, who was unanimously named permanent chairman of the meeting. Previous opposition, which several days ago forced Johnson to withdraw as an active candidate, was dissipated by preliminary conferences by the party leaders.

Fletcher upheld the correctness of the figures he quoted on the cost of recovery operation in his July 7 Jacksonville, Mich. speech.

"The credit of the United States can only be undermined by the government itself indulging in unsound financial policies and unchecked extravagances," he said. "We are entitled to know what our government is doing with our money and our credit."

Asking why the AAA should be continued, the national chairman said cotton and tobacco crop control policies threaten to remove from the farmer control of his land.

"If we are going to deny the American farmer the right to till his own land and market his products freely," he continued, "we transform him from an independent citizen into a serf and we are back on the feudal ways. Already they are talking of moving farmers away from their land and homes, to become virtually wards of the government, much as we treated the Indians."

Disarmament cropped up only when it came time to nominate three for six-year terms as trustees of the University of Illinois.

After an uproarious floor fight, the nominations were given to James W. Armstrong of Rock Island, Merle J. Trees of Chicago and Mrs. Mary A. Wall of Murphysboro.

The winning candidates were recommended by the Alumni association of the university.

Armstrong, Trees and Mrs. Marjorie Hopkins of Chicago are the trustees whose terms expire this year.

Virtually all the crowd stayed through the heat until Fletcher finished.

BIG SAVING MADE IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(P)—A saving of $400,000 in rural school districts in Illinois was made possible this year by close cooperation between the Illinois emergency relief commission and the school districts that had applied to the commission for assistance to keep their schools open, the commission announced today.

This saving was made possible, the commission said, through a closer control of local funds available, together with the advancement of funds by the commission so that the districts most in need could function with a smaller amount of financial assistance.

The total aid originally requested by the rural school districts of the state last spring amounted to $601,841.54. A financial basis for operating the schools was worked out between the school districts and the commission with the resultant savings. Only $226,233.70 of the money asked was used.

(By the Associated Press)
A cool wave enroute from Alaska and northwestern Canada with a cargo of relief for perspiring middle western states traveled far behind schedule Thursday and only South Dakota was able to quaff its refreshing rains and breezes.

Temperatures above 100 again were commonplace as cloudless skies permitted the sun to beat on drought ridden farm lands.

Missouri, which with Kansas has borne the brunt of the current heat wave, again was the focal point of attack. Maryville led the state and nation with a temperature of 113. Jefferson City recorded 107. Close behind came St. Louis, Kansas City and Kirksville, all with 106.

Rains accompanied the cool wave at Sioux Falls, Yankton, Mitchell, Brookings and Watertown. S. D. Temperatures ranged from 55 degrees at Aberdeen to 42 at Pierre. Almost an inch of rain fell at Watertown.

For the second consecutive day the temperature at Springfield, Ill., exceeded 107. The official thermometer recorded 108 degrees, a degree above the previous all time record of 107.5 set Wednesday.

High humidity added to the discomforts of the 94 degree heat at Chicago, but toward mid-afternoon the temperature dropped to 91 and occasional breezes gave a measure of relief.

One heat death was recorded at Kansas City. Two died of heat and three drowned in Ohio. Two persons dropped dead after heat strokes in Illinois.

COOLER IN NORTH
Des Moines, Ia., had a reading of 102 degrees. When the thermometer recorded 100 at Oklahoma City it was the 36th consecutive day of temperatures there about or equal to the 100 mark.

The reading at South Bend, Ind., was 102 degrees. At St. Paul the temperature was 81 degrees, ten points lower than Wednesday.

The west shared in the heat wave. It was 102 at Phoenix, while Dallas had an even 100 and Tucson 102. Local showers fell in northern Utah and southern Idaho. The temperature at Salt Lake City was 81 degrees. The Pacific Coast enjoyed mild weather.

Showers fell at Washington, D. C., where the temperature remained in the eighties. New York was more comfortable with a reading of 77. Moderate temperatures prevailed in Pennsylvania.

Three persons were known dead and 18 others were missing as a cloudburst and terrific hail storm struck in the Denver area.

Scouring waters cascading down a canyon caught some of the victims in their automobiles, others were swept from a foot bridge into the roaring waters.

Not far from Marshall, Mo., a sfo exploded, presumably as a result of the intense heat and three fires in Moberly, Mo., dwindled the drought-strunk water supply.

THREE DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR AT SING SING

Mrs. Anna Antonio And Two Companions Pay Extreme Penalty

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(P)—Mrs. Anna Antonio, 29-year-old mother of three children, was put to death in the electric chair tonight at Sing Sing prison for the $5,000 insurance murder of her husband.

In swift succession her condemned confederate, Vincent Saeetta, 34, and Samuel Farraci, 43, followed Mrs. Antonio to the execution chamber and were put to death.

Mrs. Antonio was escorted into the chamber by a priest and two maistrons. She was attired in a light blue gingham dress, and said nothing.

But as she was seated in the electric chair at 10:13 p. m. Eastern standard time, she mumbled, almost under her breath, prayer after the clergyman.

The gray-haired executioner, Robert Elliott, threw the switch almost immediately.

She was obscured from view of the witnesses by the two matrons, who stepped aside only when the physicians approached the chair after the current had been turned off.

After examining her heart action, physicians pronounced her dead at 10:17 p. m. E. S. T.

Farraci was the next. He went to the chair at 10:24 p. m.

"I am going to the chair but I am innocent. That's all I have to say. I thank you and wish you good luck all your life," he said.

Saeetta was the last of the trio to be strapped down. He was put in the chair at 10:26 p. m.

"Hello," said Saeetta to the guards, with a smile.

Two hours before Saeetta, whose statements in the past had delayed the electrocution of the woman, said from his cell, "She is innocent."

After the executioner had once turned off the current with Farraci in the chair, physicians examined him and found that he was not yet dead. It was necessary to apply the electricity a second time.

A Joke on Science

For 20 years there reposed in the exhibit cases of the Smithsonian Institution what was believed to be a fossilized ear of corn. It was bought by the institute in 1914 in Peru, and to the scientists it proved conclusively that the ancient Indians of that land were farmers and raised corn.

But recently the fossil was turned over to a geologist for study, and he found it to be made of clay. It was moulded by hand and baked in a slow fire. At the base end there was a cleverly built receptacle containing some pellets that rattled. The thing is only a toy made for the amusement of some ancient Indian child.

Those who swear by the findings of science and accept all the theories they propound as gospel will be shocked at this revelation that the Smithsonian scientists had their leg pulled. They were not good judges of antiques, and they jumped at a conclusion that did not exist, but which was accepted as truth for a score of years.

Some years ago scientists were much interested in the discovery of a skeleton of a giant animal in a Texas county. They were excited over the theory that mastodons must once have inhabited that region, that mighty monsters roamed the Texas plains. But an oldtimer in the community started his memory working.

He recalled that about 15 years earlier a circus had visited the community, and that during its stay one of the elephants died. He helped bury the elephant on the very spot where the skeleton was unearthed. Even science has its embarrassing moments.

Greener Pastures (?)

The grass is always greener across the fence in the other fellow's field, even tho' the fence may be an ocean and the field another country. We have been talking much about the rapidly with which England is emerging from depression, and there have been those who have hinted that the absence of a New Deal in the British Isles has helped the situation there.

But over there, we understand, the feeling is reversed. The Britisher is not altogether satisfied with his progress and wonders if a New Deal might not be just the thing he needs. There are still about 2,000,000 unemployed in England, which is about 80 per cent of our own number, in proportion to population. The English coal industry is still hard hit, and a third of the miners are unemployed. English exports are only 80 per cent of normal.

The depression in England began just after the war closed, and by the time we went into depression, England had already adopted the dole system and a housing scheme that added a million new homes for the poor. The English New Deal is now an old deal. There was no sudden collapse in 1929, such as we experienced.

England has made some recovery. Her wholesale prices have risen and leveled off at a fair average. Her exports are improved somewhat, and unemployment has decreased. But there is not sufficient improvement to warrant Americans in bragging up the English recovery program. Judged by length of time it has been in operation, it has not accomplished as much as has the New Deal in this country.

Rural Fire Menace

Motorists are hereby warned to be careful how they throw away burning matches or lighted cigarettes while speeding along country highways or hard roads. Everything in the rural sections is as dry as powder and grass, stubble, hedge and brush will kindle into flame with no urging.

Three fires have started in this manner during the past few days, all of them west of the city. One blaze got started in a patch of timber near the Point church and kept neighbors out fighting fire all night. Another burned a large patch of grass along the hard road before it was seen and extinguished. Another started at a point where it could easily have swept across a field of dry stubble.

The drought and the intense heat have united to increase the fire hazard. Farmers watch anxiously for an incipient blaze and put it out at once. Most of the fire runs in the city itself are to extinguish grass or brush fires. Such a blaze can easily get out of control and do serious damage.

A little caution on the part of motorists will ease the situation. A match should not be thrown away until the smoker is sure it is not burning, and it should be the same with an abandoned cigarette. Carelessness in this regard might now result in a conflagration that would amount to a catastrophe.

Germs in Speech

We learn with surprise that when people talk they propel ten feet into the air germs from their mouths and throats. That is why doctors and nurses attending the Dionne quintuplets wear gauze masks, and perhaps that is why the five little girls are still alive. Adults can resist these bombardments of germs, but small children may not.

As far as we know, the number of germs shot forth by the ordinary talker has not been computed. We are wondering how much of a barrage a United States senator would lay down while carrying on a filibuster. We also know how why we dislike the fellow who sticks his face so close to us when he talks; we are in danger every minute.

Perhaps it will never again be necessary to use material force in combating an enemy. All that is needed is to get within less than ten feet of him, look directly at him and start talking. He will be compelled to breathe in a few million choice germs, which may do him all the harm intended. It doesn't matter much what is said, but of course one might express a frank opinion of his enemy if his getaway is quick enough.

Side Lights

Something tells us it's a good thing for the quintuplets they were born in Canada. Under the New Deal, three of them would have to be drowned.

And now the Sahara desert has nothing on us.

We are going to eat fruits and vegetables from California this winter. Maybe Florida could start a price war.

Prof. Tugwell says we have been living in "economic cannibalism." Guess the Prof. has been eating raw beef again.

Doug Fairbanks is coming home, which this time will be any old place he can hang his hat.

Now that silver has been nationalized, we will hear no more of the "crime of 1873."

The present weather is enough to make a fellow boil.

PREPARES CHRISTMAS FOR SOLDIERS WITH MERCURY OVER 100

Jerseyville, Aug. 9.—With the thermometer in her office registering 104, Mrs. Mary Schulte, active worker in the American Red Cross organization, was busy Thursday packing Christmas gifts for the World War veterans who are in foreign hospitals.

Each chapter of the Red Cross is requested to send in an allotment of gifts for these unfortunate men and in order to reach their destination on time the presents must be in San Francisco, Calif., by Sept. 1. This necessitates immediate preparation in Jersey county.

The packages are each wrapped in Christmas paper, and sealed with Christmas tags. Each American soldier in the overseas hospitals receives one of the presents which include a box of stationery, a pencil, tooth paste, tooth brush, handkerchiefs, wash cloths, and a handy sewing kit containing buttons, threads and other smaller articles used in keeping their clothing mended.

The New Deal in Washington

This is the seventh of a series of articles telling of the more important governmental agencies created under the New Deal, their aims, and their activities, written by Rodney Dutcher, Journal-Courier and NEA Washington correspondent.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 9.—Government loans at last are being made direct to the small manufacturer, but not with the once widespread belief that they're a recovery panacea.

The old New Deal theory that recovery was being held up because banks stupidly refused to lend good risks among small and medium-sized industries has a modicum of truth in it. Some banks have an exaggerated passion for liquidity.

But hopes that industrial loans would be an important factor in revival have been dampened because, according to private advices from experts here, it is generally true that firms which have good credit can still borrow from banks. Some banks are trying to push loans on what they consider good risks. Most complaints come from folks the banks consider poor risks.

Uncle Sam isn't taking any risks or playing Santa Claus, either, as thousands of would-be borrowers are finding out. Most of the applicants so far have been ineligible for loans or without sufficient collateral or prospects.

The open secret of the credit situation is that business has no fundamental confidence in recovery. The banks are tight with credit, but business generally is afraid to borrow against the future as it does in normal times.

Small Industry Will Be Helped

Nevertheless, the Loans to Industry Act operations are hardly under way and they're bound to help small industry to a certain extent. Some hard-up firms, at least, will benefit. The theory is that many have been beleaguered by increased costs under NRA.

The $300,000,000 authorized for loans from RFC and the $250,000,000 available through the Federal Reserve System are designed almost entirely for payrolls and materials needed by industries short of working capital, whose appeals for credit must first have been turned down by the banks.

Little is allowed for construction, refinancing, debt or taxes. Borrowers must be solvent, must comply with their NRA code, must promise not to buy from any non-competing firm, and must have been in business on Jan. 1. Any type of industry is eligible.

Necessary red tape has held up loans, but RFC has made 53 industrial loans totaling $4,886,000 and has received about 4,100 applications, mostly sour. The Aug. 1 Federal Reserve statement, however, showed only $5,000 in industrial loans by that agency.

The RFC is always considered "tough." You virtually have to swear your life away to get any money out of it. But it does function.

The Federal Reserve, on the other hand, is ultra-conservative.

Loans Are Limited to $500,000

For an industrial loan, you apply either to one of the 32 RFC regional offices, one of the 12 Reserve banks, or to any Reserve member bank. Loans from either agency are limited to $500,000 and must mature within five years at the prevailing local bank rate—usually between 4 and 6 per cent.

In cases where commercial banks may be influenced by poor recent earnings records, the RFC is willing to lend if prospects really look good. A highly important consideration is whether the proposed loan will maintain existing employment or increase it.

Bankers usually get their hooks in firmly when they lend and while the Federal Reserve loan requirements will be almost as stiff as the RFC's, the loans from the Jesse Jones' outfit will increase by just so much the government's control over business.

RFC Has Plenty of Safeguards

The RFC has complete access to all books and records of borrowers and controls their dividends, wages and salary scales. No borrowing firm can increase anybody's pay or hire any new person at more than $2,400 a year without RFC's permission.

RFC may reduce salaries and Jones insists corporations should forego dividends to stockholders while borrowing from the government. Also, RFC grudgingly demands enough collateral to guarantee the government against loss.

A journey through RFC's 20-page application blank will show you that the applicant firm must give its complete history, purpose in borrowing, every last item of financial and physical condition, markets, orders, sales expectations and their basis, all patents and trademarks, names of large stockholders and a vast mass of other facts.

The layman wading through such a document is promptly convinced that nobody can ever get a nickel.

Julian Wadsworth Tells of Burning of Old Monastery

(Editor's Note: The description of the destruction of Mega-Spillon Ancient Greek Monastery was written by Julian Wadsworth of this city. The description will be published in two articles, the first of which appears today.)

Athens, Greece, July 17.—For weeks we have been anticipating spending a month at the famous old monastery of Mega-Spillon, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea. I have wanted to get a closer acquaintance with the Greek church. The services have seemed to be spiritual and the arch bishop of Athens and the priests much less auto-Cvatic and nearer the people than those of the Persian church. A small but comfortable hotel is connected with the monastery. Everybody is enthusiastic over the marvelous views rivaling those of the Swiss Alps and the Tyrol. We have been reading a lot and have collected a number of books to keep us busy. The library with its priceless manuscripts would be open to me. The works are so human in their treatment of foreigners and are especially friendly to Americans. I had even dreamed that I might find an old monk at his work in wood-carving and if so, I know he would let me do a bit of work beside him.

Well, this morning, when Antoine came with our coffee he asked if we were going Thursday to Mega-Spillon.

"Yes, we have our room engaged with a lovely balcony," "But," he said very solemnly, "you will not go to Mega-Spillon. It is burned. It is a ruin in ashes." He then showed the Greek morning papers all giving lurid pictures of the fire which started at four o'clock yesterday afternoon and was still burning in the surrounding forest. It was indeed the death of thousand year old monastery.

All who have loved Mega-Spillon are with us today in sorrow. We had pictured the old rambling building clinging to the rocks in a wild and savage gorge, reached only by a climb on a donkey's back. We had dreamed of quiet hours among the rare old folios and illuminated volumes of priceless Biblio-Theque while making friendlier relations between our own and this eastern branch of the church.

We are told that of the monastery today there remains nothing, not even the rock supports which held it to the lofty mountainside for these were shattered by a thundering blast of gunpowder which had been for several hundred years concealed in a cellar beneath the library. This powder had remained from the days when monasteries were fortresses both material and spiritual.

In the beginning of the last century, the Greeks were fighting for their independence from Turkish rule which had held them 400 years in abject slavery. When the Turks used every means to crush the ancient spirit of freedom, trying to blot out the very language and every trace of the Christian religion, Mega-Spillon played an important part in that struggle.

A special permit had been granted to it by one of the sultans which doubtless had been purchased with an enormous price by this rich monastery. It excluded all Turkish visitors from its rock guarded domain.

The great grotto had become a refuge for thousands of women and children. It was here in secret that the monks by teaching the children to read, kept alive their beloved and ancient language. And the religion of the Cross was maintained above that of the Crescent. It was at this place that the revolution had its beginning. From these gates the arch bishop, Germanos went forth in April, 1821, to raise the standard of independence in the neighboring monastery of Lavra, where the precious standard is still shown as one of the choice historic relics of Greece.

Had Prepared for Revolt
The monks of Mega-Spillon had long in secrecy been preparing for the revolt. At last they threw off their cowls and installed two cannons on the summit of the mountain near a towering cruxifix which had stood for a blessing to all the surrounding country.

Ibrahim, the Turkish Pasha, with a powerful army could hold all Greece in subjection but was unable to put down the monks of Mega-Spillon.

With the library today in ruin, one thinks of the possible loss not only of the priceless illuminated texts, but of the historic documents as well. Among these would be a letter of the commander of the Turkish army and a copy of the response to it made by the brave monks. Ibrahim demanded the immediate surrender of the monastery.

"Do Holy men mix themselves in warlike things?" In the letter these holy men counselled him, saying: "For the long years, go on farther. For," they said, "it would not be good for a valiant captain to be beaten by a few coloyens (aged monks whose object in life is to pray for the world"). However, it was this that happened for the pasha general refusing their counsel, came to the charge and was repulsed by the use of this treasure gunpowder. Until yesterday the powder left from that historic encounter was forgotten. It has remained hidden under the library floor." (Continued Tomorrow.)

The man fell from his bed last Sunday and fractured his hip. He was admitted to the hospital July 23.

Members of the jury of inquest were Ralph B. Reynolds, foreman, Roy Johnson, W. H. Crawford, George S. Killam, A. W. Ruyle and D. B. Johnson.

PICNIC DINNER

The Junior Shakespearean and Dramatic Club held a picnic dinner at Nichols park Thursday. Those in attendance were: Mrs. Robert H. WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY YOU'RE HAPPY!

The blame for "blue" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skins, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. It's this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful!

Two tablespoonsful of All-Bran daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Get the red and green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Jersey Youth Taken to Hospital After Attempting Suicide

Jerseyville, Ill., Aug. 9.—Earl Nevlin, twenty-two year old resident of the Nutwood district in Jersey county, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Alton Wednesday in a serious condition as the result of self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

According to reports this was the second attempt Nevlin had made to take his life. It is said he had been in a despondent mood for several days and Tuesday morning told a neighbor, Bob Benson, he had taken two capsules of sugar of lead and that if that didn't kill him he was going to shoot himself. Benson thought he was joking and paid no attention to the remark. Later Tuesday afternoon Nevlin took his twenty-two rifle and started out squirrel hunting. On his journey he passed the Tanager farm in that locality and talked with some men working there. Nevlin asked one of the men for a cigarette and, according to reports, when told the workman had none, Nevlin handed him a package and said, "Take these. I won't need them any more."

After leaving the Tanager place, the despondent youth started home, taking a short cut through a corn field on a farm occupied by Clyde Meyers. No shots were heard, but about dark, "Dutch" Delp of that neighborhood found Nevlin lying in the pathway in the corn field, suffering from a gunshot wound. When Delp saw the man was in a serious condition he took Nevlin to the office of a physician in Fieldon. Here an examination showed that the bullet had entered Nevlin's right temple, pierced the skull and brain, and emerged on the left side near the temple. The injured man was conscious most of the time and was taken to his home following emergency treatment. Wednesday he was taken to the Alton hospital.

An examination of the premises where he was found revealed that Nevlin had fallen to the ground when he shot, and dropped his gun at that place. Later he evidently got up and walked a distance of about twenty-five or thirty yards before he fell again in the pathway where he was found by Delp. The youth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nevlin of Nutwood.

Plan to Capture Fish
Plans are being formulated for the capture of one of the largest spoon bill cats ever seen in the waters of Illinois. The giant fish estimated to weigh at a minimum of 150 pounds is confined in the waters of the old Macoupin slough.

Last Sunday the fish was caught in a seine, Warden Thomas Cummings reports, but the captors of the great spoon bill saw fit to permit his escape from the net as the danger of taking him was too great. "Such a fish could break a man's leg," said Cummings, "with one swish of its body."

A number of giant cats weighing about fifty pounds have been taken from the slough during the past few weeks. The giant spoon bill is impounded in the slough so that his eventual capture is certain, Cummings stated, but it will require more than ordinary methods to capture and hold him. The final effort to bring him into captivity will be made in a few days and if it is successful, arrangements are to be made for the preservation of the fish alive in a tank for removal to the State Fair as an exhibit in the display of the Department of Conservation.

Much controversy has arisen during the stage of low water between parties opposed to "logging" fish and those catching large quantities of fish in that manner. The law as interpreted by the Department of Conservation permits the logging where one has a license to fish. It is cited that a hunting license permits one to hunt and take fur bearing animals when strictly speaking a trapping license should really be held by the taker of the fur bearers.

Local advocates of conservation are urging revision of the game and fish codes to require additional licenses for logging of fish and abolishing the permit to take fur bearing animals on an ordinary hunting license. Considerable complaint has been registered by property owners in western Jersey county due to the large number of fishermen invading lands abutting on streams. The fishermen are almost exclusively "loggers" and their presence in many cases has been reported as objectionable.

Drainage Timber Fired
A timber fire raged throughout the night Tuesday in the woods on the farm of Hugo Draher, four and one-half miles northwest of Jerseyville. Residents of the vicinity gathered and battled the flames throughout the night in order to prevent the spread of the fire to adjoining localities.

Small trees, underbrush and many large size trees were victims of the fury of the fire. The blaze had its origin when a pile of brush was burned near the timber Tuesday afternoon. The fire spread from the burning brush pile to the adjacent grass and leaves. It communicated with the under like leaves and brush in the woods and from then on the woods became a blazing furnace. Farmers with pitchforks and rakes kept up the battle through the night before the fire was brought under control. The entire tract of timber on the farm was burned over.

Fire hazard to orchards and woodlands is unusually great this season, and orchardists in Jersey and Calhoun counties are taking extra precautions to protect their orchards from fire.

Norbury Explains Pressure Influence on Weather Changes

By Dr. F. P. Norbury
It is a fact that high barometric pressure controls the highway and traffic movements of weather.

The normal route of any individual "low" barometric pressure (the storm carrier) depends for its maintenance upon the prevailing eastward drift of air, due to the revolution of the world on its axis and the weight of the atmosphere holding it in close contact with the earth. The extent and motion of the "high" advancing before the "low" controls the movement of the "low" and also gives direction to the "high". In consequence when the "high" becomes a "stagnant high", slow moving on a "semi-permanent high" or a "permanent high", then traffic becomes confused and is deflected. The "lows" seeking a way out of their dilemma have to follow "detours". Then it is conditions may and do develop which deflect storm centers, the "lows" coming from the southwest. The "low" normally would pass northeast, crossing the Mississippi Valley on its way to the St. Lawrence and out to sea.

But the "high", semi-permanent or permanent blocks the way, creating the opportunity for hot air from the Gulf, wafted on gentle winds and carrying very little water vapor, to spread its scorching heat over the entire Mississippi valley and from the Canadian border nearly to the Gulf. This is the condition prevailing today. The permanent "high" (barometric pressure) is found extending from the southeastern states out to sea and across the Atlantic ocean to, and including the Sahara desert in Africa.

This persistent high barometric pressure area is augmented by the usual North Atlantic summer "high". By reason of the blocking of usual highways of the summer "lows", they are detoured to the north into Canada or what is happening in this vicinity, they disintegrate. We say it looks like rain, but the rain passes us by. Where does the potential rain cloud go? It simply vanishes, evaporates.

The wind circulation is persistently southerly, and follows in its movements the direction of the hands of your watch. This is a significant fact.

Local thunderstorms offer no relief from the major prevailing weather conditions. Not much change can be expected until the large high pressure area with its persistent resistance to the feeble appeals of the "lows", moves out of the way.

Until the "high" is broken up there will be no respite from the southerly winds causing accumulated heat to spend itself in continuing the drought and suffering of man and beast.

Here's a Western Presentation That Went Over Big!

That looks like a brand new hat President Roosevelt is wearing, but you should see the snappy model he was given out west, where HATS are HATS! Here you see Pearl Van Horn, Washington cow-girl, presenting him with a 10-gallon sombrero at the site of the $63,000,000 Great Coulee Dam, in Washington, where he addressed a throng of more than 10,000. Looking smilingly on are Governor Martin of Washington and Mrs. Roosevelt.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to give you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your downcast mood is in your liver. It should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25-cent drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. They should pour out thru the bladder 8 pints of fluid a day which contains 4 pounds of waste matter. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. If kidneys don't empty 8 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS.

MERCHANTS PLAN EXHIBITS FOR FAIR

Plans for the merchants' display tent at the Morgan County Fair are being carried forward by a committee consisting of George Lukeman, J. W. Merrigan and R. E. Welch. The tent will be rearranged for the coming fair and will be provided with a floor by the fair management.

All booths will be made uniform on the same floor level. This will save the exhibitors time and money in preparing their displays. Some former exhibitors have already reserved space in the tent, and the committee is selling out the booths as rapidly as possible.

The season tickets for the fair have been issued and will be placed in various downtown stores. The catalogs have all been mailed to exhibitors. Entries are beginning to come into fair headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce. Preparations for the fair are well under way.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN

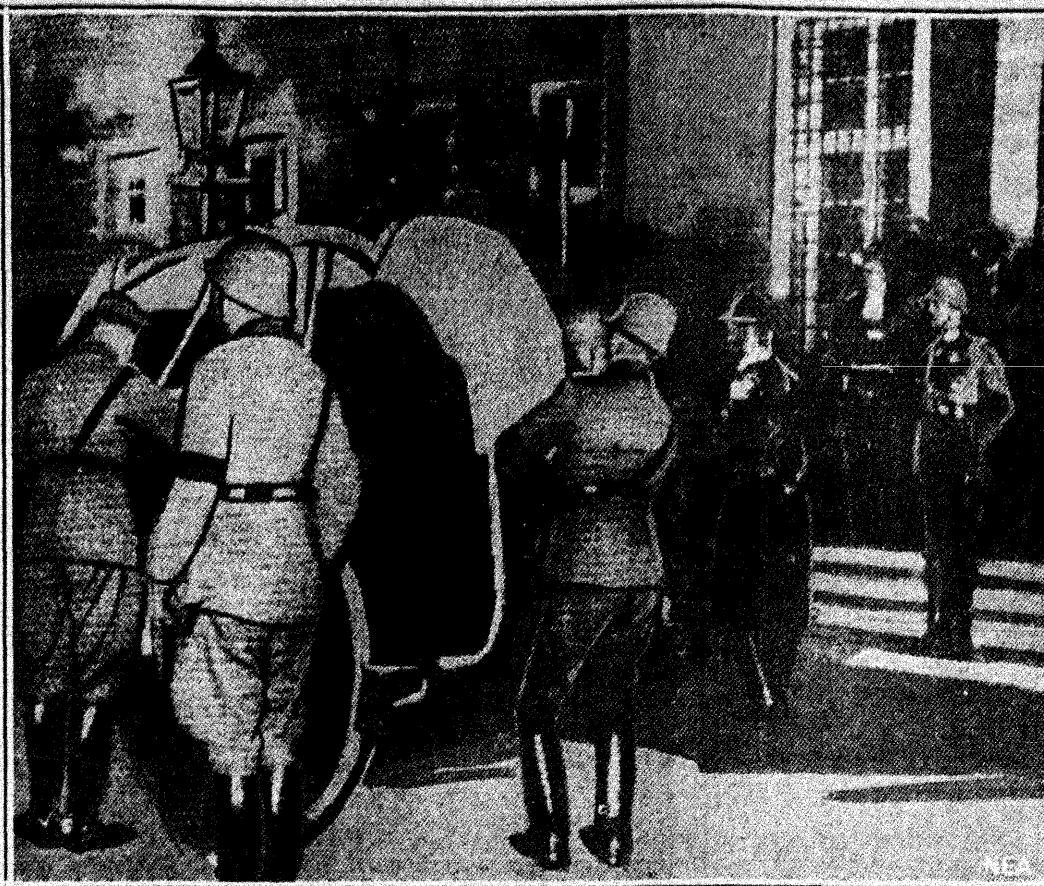

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 9.—(P)—Two young men, identified by cards as having been privates in the 8th field artillery at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, were killed today by a south-bound freight train on the outskirts of East St. Louis.

The men, who were wearing overalls and apparently were walking on the tracks, carried cards identifying them as Frederick Casselman, 24, and Joseph E. Baugh, 22. They were special privilege cards given soldiers with good records.

Officials Predict Balanced Exports Will Aid Farmers

Wallace, Hull Claim New Trade Agreements Will Be Beneficial

By CHARLES P. NUTTER

Washington, Aug. 9.—(P)—Balanced exports which will give a fair break to both farmer and manufacturer are forecast by cabinet officers trying to rejuvenate America's ailing world trade.

Secretaries Wallace and Hull explained last night the purpose of reciprocal trade agreements to be negotiated with foreign countries. They joined in saying that neither agricultural nor manufacturing would suffer.

Their statement explained that in the early stages of the nation's economic development, international trade consisted mainly of the exchange of farm products for manufactured articles from other countries.

The world war wrought a change. It expanded exports of manufactured products while continuing heavy agricultural exports.

The depression and the change of the United States from a debtor to a creditor nation caused relatively greater harm to agriculture than to industry. Farm exports decreased below manufactured exports in value.

"It is to American farmers, therefore," the statement said, "that enough assistance will undoubtedly be given by the trade agreements to fully restore relative fair treatment as between agriculture and industry."

The statement pointed out, in answer to criticism from farm organizations that farm interests would not be sacrificed to aid other groups.

It also said no sacrifices of any major or basic agricultural or manufacturing industry was planned, although Secretary Wallace told reporters that some harm might be done to a tiny fraction of the producers for the greater good of all.

By a new decree all tooth pastes must be analyzed, approved and registered by the government before they can be sold in Argentina.

Centerville

Centerville, Aug. 8.—Otis Stewart and family attended the annual Stewart family reunion which was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Stewart near Rohrer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Reed entertained the Centerville 4-H group at their home last Friday evening, Aug. 3.

Orval Taylor and children returned to their home in Galesburg Tuesday after a two weeks' vacation visit with his sister, Mrs. Bill Rouland, and other relatives in and around Waverly.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Sims and family of Waverly visited Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Keplinger, in this precinct.

Mrs. Mae Sappington and small son have moved here from Jacksonville preparatory for the opening of the school season, when Mrs. Sappington will teach Harmony school.

Mr. Wilson of Athensville has been hired to teach West Point school instead of Mrs. Emily Eldridge as was first reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Langley and daughter, Alice Marie, spent Sunday with Mrs. Langley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Rouland, Martha Ellen Langley and Annabel Rouland spent the same day with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunt.

Albert Miller and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Miller, are visiting his mother and her husband's mother, Mrs. Thos. Edwards.

Kenneth Crum and Elvis Rouland went from this precinct with the last contingent of the C. C. C. going first to Jefferson Barracks.

The Harmony Community club will hold its regular meeting at the Harmony school house Friday night, Aug. 10, to which the general public is invited. Everyone attending is requested to bring tea and cookies; also a glass for each member of their family. The program committee is in charge of Edna Martin and Emmet Miner and the refreshment committee will be Mrs. Everett Miner and Mrs. August Rouland.

The Centerville 4-H group expect to go on an outing trip to Merceda over the week-end, leaving here Friday morning.

Guy Langley received painful injuries to his hand and wrist Tuesday while stretching barbed wire, then slipping from the stretcher thru his hands and back over the inside of the wrist, cutting quite deep gashes that are giving signs of possible serious results.

During the recent flood in South West Africa 83 passengers were marooned in a train near lonely Keetmanshoop for 24 days until airplanes rescued them.

MANY TREES ARE DYING IN CALHOUN COUNTY, REPORT

Cause of Decay of Soft Wood Timber Is Unknown

Carrollton, Ill., Aug. 8.—Reports reaching Carrollton from our neighbor county, Calhoun, are that not only apple and other fruit trees in that section, but also soft maple, cottonwood and willow and other variety of soft wood trees are dying by the hundred. The trees become dry and easily broken shortly after the foliage dries. It was thought at first that the fruit trees of Calhoun were dying from the extreme drought which has ravaged other crops in this vicinity, but as large numbers of the soft wood trees that are dying have been growing directly along the banks of the Mississippi and Illinois rivers and as an examination of the soil beneath some of the dead trees, discloses ample moisture, many of the trees extending into the water of the two rivers.

Hot winds that have existed for almost the entire past month is now thought to have caused the trees to die, but this has not been proven to be a fact. The thousands of trees on the bluffs in Calhoun that are showing signs of destruction and the apple trees that have died in large numbers were said to have been damaged by the hot winds and not altogether by the drought for since the trees along the water edge have also died leads to the belief that lack of moisture is not the cause of the death of the trees. A new theory has been advanced by several persons who have watched hundreds of the trees die, is that the trees are suffering from some sort of an unknown disease that may threaten the destruction of the entire soft timber supply of this section.

Ship Apples

The first carload of Calhoun county apples for this season were shipped out of East Hardin thru Carrollton last Saturday. Other years train load, after train load of this crop, were handled thru this route but this year's shipments are going to be light as many of the best orchards are almost bare of fruit.

PEORIA TEAM TO HAVE CHAMPIONS IN POOL CONTEST

The Country Club of Peoria swimming team is a team of champions. On this unusually powerful team there are five champions and record holders of prominence in this state. Foremost among these is a charming, 13-year old young lady, named Harriet Vance. She is now a Chicago Tribune champion, having won the 100 yard free style race to 13 and 14 year olds. Her time for the race, however, was the fastest time of the meet for women, being even better than that of the older lady swimmers.

At the central Illinois Water meet held in Springfield on Saturday, August 4, Miss Vance greatly advanced in prestige among Illinois swimmers. At Springfield she splashed her way through to win the high-point trophy for women, by winning the 50 yd. breast stroke race, the 50 yard free style and the 100 yard free style. All three races were won in record time.

Frank Hewitt, captain of University of Illinois swimming team of 1934, and holder of the 50 yd free, the 100 yard and 220 yard free style records here until last year, is also entered with the Peoria Country Club team. Hewitt, who needs no introduction to Jacksonville, is considered one of the very best polo players in the country.

Entered in the sprints with Hewitt is 16 year old Grant Anderson, present holder of the Illinois High school 100 yard free style record. Anderson easily won the 100 yard free style event at the recent Springfield meet.

Another high school champion is

Stanley Alcorn, undefeated holder of the breast stroke record in the Big Twelve high school conference. Like Anderson, he displayed unusual ability when he very handsily won the 100 yard breast stroke race at Springfield.

True Weaver is the fifth champion on the Peoria team. Weaver will enter the diving in an attempt to win the large silver cup being offered for the divers here. Weaver, who placed second to Humphries of Bloomington in the diving here last year, was the former state Y. M. C. A. diving champion.

UPPERMOST WINS SARATOGA SPECIAL

By Orlo Robertson
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Morton L. Schwartz's Uppermost, winner of her only two previous starts in a job, stepped into high class company today and reeled off five and one-half furlongs in 1:05 3-5 to win the 17th running of the Schuylerville stakes for two-year old fillies at Saratoga.

The chestnut daughter of Cohort, turning in the fastest time of the meeting for the distance, drove past the judges with a neck advantage over Viceversa. A length and a half back in third place trailed Bird Flower.

The long shot players cashed in after the running of the fourth and fifth races. Allan Ryan's Larrange, running his best race since winning the Cuban and National two years ago, stepped seven furlongs in 1:23 4-5, one-fifth of a second off the track record, to win the fourth and pay 25 to 1. Samuel Riddle's two year old High Flag came through with a nose decision in the fifth and paid off at 20 to 1.

"Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, who saddled Viceversa to run second in the Spa special, had better luck at Narragansett when H. C. Pipp's Caves counted for the mile top event, styled for three-year olds.

The bay colt could do no better than third in two races at Saratoga but today he came from far back to register with a length to spare over Redress. Zorana was third.

Caves was the favorite and returned $5.80 for $2. His time was 1:39. J. S. Hunt's Smuggled in won his second straight race in accounting for the mile feature at Detroit. The chestnut gelding galloped to the judges one and one-quarter lengths in front of No Doubt to pay $6.60. Martin Barton, an offspring of the famous Sir Barton, was third.

CROWLEY LEADS

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Jimmy Crowley of Fordham was back in the lead tonight in the poll to select a coach for the All-Star college football squad which will tackle the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field August 31.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois was fourth with 136,448. Harry Kipke of Michigan had 116,396; Edward Patrick Madigan of St. Mary's 114,857, and Lou Little of Columbia, 102,805.

PEORIA TEAM TO HAVE CHAMPIONS IN POOL CONTEST

The Country Club of Peoria swimming team is a team of champions. On this unusually powerful team there are five champions and record holders of prominence in this state. Foremost among these is a charming, 13-year old young lady, named Harriet Vance. She is now a Chicago Tribune champion, having won the 100 yard free style race to 13 and 14 year olds. Her time for the race, however, was the fastest time of the meet for women, being even better than that of the older lady swimmers.

At the central Illinois Water meet held in Springfield on Saturday, August 4, Miss Vance greatly advanced in prestige among Illinois swimmers. At Springfield she splashed her way through to win the high-point trophy for women, by winning the 50 yd. breast stroke race, the 50 yard free style and the 100 yard free style. All three races were won in record time.

Frank Hewitt, captain of University of Illinois swimming team of 1934, and holder of the 50 yd. free, the 100 yd. and 220 yd. free style records here until last year, is also entered with the Peoria Country Club team. Hewitt, who needs no introduction to Jacksonville, is considered one of the very best polo players in the country.

Entered in the sprints with Hewitt is 16 year old Grant Anderson, present holder of the Illinois High school 100 yd. free style record. Anderson easily won the 100 yd. free style event at the recent Springfield meet.

Another high school champion is

Stanley Alcorn, undefeated holder of the breast stroke record in the Big Twelve high school conference. Like Anderson, he displayed unusual ability when he very handsily won the 100 yard breast stroke race at Springfield.

True Weaver is the fifth champion on the Peoria team. Weaver will enter the diving in an attempt to win the large silver cup being offered for the divers here. Weaver, who placed second to Humphries of Bloomington in the diving here last year, was the former state Y. M. C. A. diving champion.

New York, Aug. 9.—(P)—Morton L. Schwartz's Uppermost, winner of her only two previous starts in a job, stepped into high class company today and reeled off five and one-half furlongs in 1:05 3-5 to win the 17th running of the Schuylerville stakes for two-year old fillies at Saratoga.

The long shot players cashed in after the running of the fourth and fifth races. Allen Ryan's Larrange, running his best race since winning the Cuban and National two years ago, stepped seven furlongs in 1:23 4-5, one-fifth of a second off the track record, to win the fourth and pay 25 to 1. Samuel Riddle's two year old High Flag came through with a nose decision in the fifth and paid off at 20 to 1.

"Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, who saddled Vicaress to run second in the Spa special, had better luck at Narragansett when H. C. Pipp's Cleves counted for the mile post event, styled for three-year olds.

The bay colt could do no better than third in two races at Saratoga but today he came from far back to register with a length to spare over Redress. Zorana was third.

Cleves was the favorite and returned $5.80 for $2. His time was 1:39.

J. S. Hunt's Smuggled in won his second straight race in accounting for the mile feature at Saratoga, also went ahead of Kizer, with 1:38.54, to 138-450 for the Purdue coach. Bob Zuppke of Illinois was fourth with 136.448.

Harry Kipke of Michigan had 116.396; Edward Patrick Madigan of St. Mary's 114.857, and Lou Little of Columbia 102.805.

Blessed Event from the Corsican stable won his first race since early in July in beating four other high class platers at Hawthorne. The four-year old gelding ran the one and one-sixteenth miles in 1:44 2-5 to pay $10.72 straight. Frank Ormont was second and consistent Fanfern third. The highly regarded Chantres, dropping down out of handicap races and Pot Au Brooms, completed the field.

CROWLEY LEADS

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(P)—Jimmy Crowley of Fordham was back in the lead tonight in the poll to select a coach for the All-Star college football squad which will tackle the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field August 31.

Crowley passed Noble Kizer of Purdue, leader for the past two days, with a total of 145,942 votes. Dick Hanley of Northwestern, also went ahead of Kizer, with 138,594, to 138-450 for the Purdue coach. Bob Zuppke of Illinois was fourth with 136.448. Harry Kipke of Michigan had 116.396; Edward Patrick Madigan of St. Mary's 114.857, and Lou Little of Columbia 102.805.

Betty Robinson Comes Back

Doctors said Betty Robinson, Olympic sprint star of 1928 who was injured in a plane crash in 1931, never would run again. But fair Betty has fooled the medicals and again is dishing up the einders. Here she is shown at right taking the baton from Mary Terwilliger as she ran with the Lincoln Park relay team in the Central A. A. U. meet in Chicago. She helped set a new record of 149.8 in the 400-meter relay.

Tigers Stretch Lead Over Idle Yankees by Tramping On St. Louis Browns, 13-2

Detroit, Aug. 9.—(P)—Manager Mickey Cochrane personally conducted the Tigers to their ninth consecutive victory and their third over the St. Louis Browns today as the Detroit club banged out a 13 to 2 victory with one of its characteristic late-inning rallies.

It was the second time in two days that Cochrane's bat figured importantly in a Tiger triumph and it put his club three full games ahead of the second-place Yankees as rain prevented the New York-Washington game.

Yesterday Cochrane drove in the winning run in the tenth. Today he batted home five tallies with four singles. The game also brought Tommy Bridges his 15th victory against six defeats, putting him on even terms with "Schoolboy" Rowe in the number of games won for the Tigers. He was touched for nine hits, three of them by Ray Pepper, but was in danger only once.

BOBBY JONES WINS AGAIN AT DETROIT

Hinsdale, Ill., Aug. 9.—(P)—Bobby Jones of Detroit entering the final of the Western Junior golf championship today by defeating Elton Hill, Urbana, Ill., 1 up. Hill lost the match on the final green by miffing a two foot putt for a half.

Hill was 2 up with four holes to go when the Detroit boy staged a typical Bobby Jones finish, taking the 15th with a par as Hill was victimized by a bad lie, and collecting a duce on the 204 yard 18th with a tee shot that stopped four feet from the pin. They halved the 17th, after which Hill blew his chances by blowing that two foot putt on the 18th.

REACHES SEMI-FINALS

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 9.—(P)—Dorothy Foster of Springfield advanced to the semi-finals of the Illinois Women's Golf tournament today by a 2 and 1 surprise victory over June Beebe of Chicago at the Evanston Golf club.

Miss Beebe's putting was off, while Miss Foster was effective on the greens. Miss Foster will meet Mrs. Lillian Zech, who defeated Hilda Lavengood, 3 and 2. Rena Nelson defeated Ellamae Williams, two up, and will meet Mrs. S. L. Reinhard, who eliminated Jean Armstrong, two up, in the other quarter-final.

LEO DIEGEL WINS GOLF TOURNAMENT

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(P)—A course record-tying 66 on the second round today won first money of the Rochester Centennial-Walter Hagen memorial golf tournament for Leo Diegel of Philadelphia.

Never rising above par in his four rounds, Diegel nosed out Ky Laffoon, Denver, with a 72 hole total of 276, eight below the par of the Tricky east course.

Laffoon, who also kept his score at par or below for the match, ended with 278. Needing a 67 to tie Diegel, the Denver pro made a valiant try, carding a par 35 on the way out and coming in one under par for a 69.

The course record of 66 was tied three times in the final round.

Diegel and Herman Barron of New York gave the gallery of 1,000 their money's worth by sinking their last putts for 66 each.

Too late to do more than tie for third and fourth money with Willie MacFarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago also clipped off a 66, giving him 282.

With his right eye almost completely closed by a bee sting suffered during yesterday's round, Laffoon surprised the crowd by his accuracy on the greens.

George Von Elm, Detroit, could not keep up the pace set by Diegel and Laffoon and turned in a 72 for 283 and a tie for fifth and sixth money with Jimmy Hines, pro from Green River, N. Y.

TERRY CLAN JUMPS ON DODGERS, 16-5

New York, Aug. 9.—(P)—The Giants, who appear to reserve their best hitting for Hal Schumacher's mound appearances, served up the young right hander's 18th victory today, garnished with 15 timely base hits. This swatting and Hal's six-hit hurling gave the league leaders a 16 to 5 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers and increased their margin over the Cubs to three games.

In the first two innings the Giants batted around twice against Ray Benge and Owen Carroll to score seven runs. After that there was nothing much to do but finish the game. Schumacher took care of that in good style, mixing in seven strikeouts with six blows. Len Koencke was the only Dodger who could do much with Hal's delivery, but he did plenty, clouting two home runs and a single.

A crowd of 5,800 saw the game. The flags of the grand-stand roof were lowered to half mast as the Dodgers came to bat in the first inning in honor of the late Wilbert Robinson, former Brooklyn manager.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

SYNOPSIS

The depression did not alter life at Hawthorn, the comfortable, hospitable home of the Philip Rutledge. Caroline, their lovely daughter, entertained lavishly and the younger set swarmed there. Mrs. Rutledge spends most of her time abroad and her husband practically lives at the club. Following her mother's return from one of her trips, Caroline gives a party. The pampered Alva notes how capably her daughter has arranged everything and wishes she could feel happier about it. Caroline's parents disapprove of her daughter's fiancé, Howard Dunsworth. Years ago, Howard's father bought property from Philip saying he wanted it for a leather factory and instead he went into the soap business in competition with Philip. The families have been enemies ever since. At the height of the party, Philip arrives home with the news that Henry Dunsworth has ruined him. Howard seems genuinely shocked. Philip tells Howard and Caroline that Dunsworth Sr.'s next move will be to break their engagement and he suggests they talk it over. "Of course, it can't make any difference to us," Caroline tells Howard. "No," he agrees, but his voice lacks warmth.

CHAPTER III

"Do you understand it, Howard? Oh no," she added quickly as his face darkened. "I don't mean to ask you know of it before today. But do you know what it means to father?"

"How should I know?" he countered.

"But I'm sure that everything father had was in the factory," Caroline explained. "If he's lost that we're broke—except for this house. I'd hate to part with this place, Howard."

"Yes," he said, "it is a charming house."

"I'd hate mother and father to lose it." Suddenly she uttered a gasp of dismay as a new and troubling thought came to her. "Perhaps father won't be able to remodel the farm house for us now!" she cried, referring to the old dwelling on the estate, where the over-seer had lived when the owners of Hawthorn House were gentlemen farmers.

Howard answered with a show of firmness. "Really, Caro, you'll get yourself into a frightful state of nerves if you keep this up. Take it easy, get used to it before you turn it inside out."

"I can't shake it," Caroline said tensely. "I'm like that, Howard, you know it. I must face issues, something drives me to it."

"But you're making me darned uncomfortable, since, as you say, my dad had a large finger in the pie."

"But you agreed that didn't matter," she replied swiftly. "I suppose I might keep my concern for Mother and father to myself. But what will we do, I wonder? How will we face our own future?"

"I'd rather not talk about it, Caro. I'll have to think."

"Please let us think it out together. I'm lost, Howard; not afraid, just lost. Do you think it's true what father said about your father, I mean? Breaking us up?"

"Well," Howard said growing blunt with his mounting impatience. "If you must have it, I'm afraid it's true all right."

"But he couldn't! How could he?"

"He's taken one important step already," Howard told her. "He cut my allowance completely when I became engaged to you."

"Oh. He is hard, isn't he? And you were too sweet to tell me."

"I wasn't greatly worried about it," Howard admitted. "As he didn't threaten to disinherit me. And I've had the money my grandmother left me."

"That's why he didn't try to frighten you with threats. He knew he couldn't."

"Not so long as you were an heiress," Howard said quietly, and waited for her to grasp the significance of his words. Caroline's mind was occupied in another direction, however.

"I shan't mind living on what your grandmother left you," she said.

"But Caro, it's very little," Howard declared.

"Is it enough for an apartment? Or Mother and Father might have us here—if they stay on. Would you dislike that Howard?"

"Caro, you know they have no use for me."

"They don't know you. When you're one of us they'll forget that you're Henry Dunsworth's son. But I'd like the apartment if you'd prefer it—even if it's just two or three rooms and a kitchenette."

Howard said, with a sort of feeble horror: "Oh lord. With me drying the dishes, I suppose. Caro, for heaven's sake, get back into your right mind."

She looked at him, and her eyes were suddenly darkened with a think of me! Well, you are wrong—I'd have been happy with you anywhere before you said that. But at least you needn't think so contemptibly of me as to believe I'll wait for you to break our engagement." With a gesture of scorn she stripped off his engagement ring and held it out to him.

Howard refused to take it. "Caro, be reasonable," he urged. "Wait, there might be a way. Things may not be so bad as your father thinks. You know I'm crazy about you..."

"But not crazy enough to marry a poor girl," Caroline broke in with a stormy laugh. "Take your ring, Howard. There's one girl in town who hasn't seen it, and she has money enough for you!"

Howard Dunsworth liked to think of himself as a pretty decent sort, considering the temptations to mistakes and the pitfalls that beset the painful suspicion. "What can we do then?" she asked levelly.

"I'm sure I don't know," he answered lamely. "I haven't enough money to support us."

Caroline's voice held steady, but she could feel a tightness in her throat as she put her next question. "You haven't lost what you had from your grandmother, have you?"

"No, but it's not enough for us to live on."

"But what had you planned on, before this?"

Howard's irritation broke through his control. "See here, Caro," he said unpleasingly. "This sounds like a school boy's catchism. I must say I thought you were as sensible about money as I."

"What do you mean, Howard—sensible?" Caroline persisted.

"We've never earned any money, you or I," Howard began. "We've always had it from our parents. What would it have mattered whose parent? If I lost my allowance through marrying you would it have been more than fair that your father should provide for us?"

"So that's what you counted on—my father's support," Caroline said quietly.

"Naturally. With the house he was giving us we could have got along very well on what I have and a lift now and then. Dad wouldn't have had a club to wield over me. He'd never have given your father the satisfaction of doing more for me than he did. I'd have inherited his money some day. It's different now. If we marry he'll cut me off, and if I know you it wouldn't please you any more to be poor than it would me."

Anger flamed quickly to Caroline's cheeks. "Is that what you

Revolutionary Vet Buried in Jersey

Jerseyville, Aug. 9.—A soldier of the American Revolution, two of the Mexican War and one of the Spanish-American War are buried in one small family cemetery in English Township.

These facts were brought to light as the result of a recent decision of the Jersey County Emergency Relief organization to foster a project calling for the marking of the graves of all veterans of wars of the United States to be found in Jersey county.

The burial ground named is known as the Faulkner cemetery and is situated on the present farm occupied by Charles Faulkner in English Township, the cemetery being on Section 36.

In the graveyard lies the body of Johnathan E. Cooper, a veteran of the American Revolution. He was the father of Edna Cooper Faulkner, mother of the present occupant of the farm, Charles Faulkner.

Cooper was born in Maryland and enlisted at a very early age in a Pennsylvania regiment as a drummer boy. He served with the organization until the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. After the close of the war, Cooper was one of the many eastern residents to follow Boone into the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky.

Taking his flint lock rifle that he had carried in the later years of the revolution, Cooper went to Kentucky where he remained for some time. Then he moved into Illinois where he finally settled in Jersey county in what is now English Township. There he lived until the time of his death in 1845.

When the Mexican War broke out, Cooper's son-in-law, William Faulkner, father of Charles Faulkner, enlisted and saw active service. His brother, James Faulkner, accompanied him in the enlistment. Both fought at the battle of Buena Vista under General Zachary Taylor, the conflict that later led to the nomination and election of General Taylor to the presidency of the United States.

Both of the Mexican War veterans rest in the little cemetery.

Then there is the grave of another war veteran in the cemetery, the body of Charles Schumacher who saw service in Cuba in the Spanish-American conflict rests there.

The grave of Jonathan Cooper is marked with a slab and the grave of William Faulkner also has a suitable monument. The grave of James Faulkner is without a marking.

Charles Faulkner stated that he has the old flint lock musket that belonged to Jonathan Cooper. The latter presented the weapon to his grandson and for a number of years the gun was kept by the late A. F. Pitt at his home in Jerseyville. Following the death of Pitt, Charles Faulkner took the gun into his possession.

The old gun was discharged by the use of a flint casing its sparks into a powder pan. The process of discharging the weapon occupied so much time, that it was necessary for the one using it to keep on aiming after he had pulled the trigger.

Farm Bureau Picnic

The annual picnic of the Jersey County Farm Bureau got under way at the Jersey County Fair Grounds Wednesday morning in spite of the prevailing heat wave.

The attendance was comparable with that of other occasions and the customary horse shoe pitching contests, diamond ball games and athletic contests occupied the attention of many during the morning and part of the afternoon.

The principal speaker for the annual occasion was Father George Nell of Island Grove parish. He spoke both afternoon and evening and used a series of stereoscopic views for the evening lecture. The latter address was supplementary to the talk of the afternoon.

In brief Father Nell's lecture covered "The New Rural Life."

individual farm families. Then he showed clearly the advantages and possibilities of organization of the individual families into occupational groups, then the groups united in a nationally functioning organization living with other similarly organized occupational groups in friendly understanding, helpful harmony, promoted and supervised by government action based on social justice and social charity.

"Agriculture," said Father Nell, "as a vocational group is not only important because of the number of people who make a living of farming, but also because this group is the producer of the food, clothing and much of the shelter material used by the other vocational groups. Furthermore, the agricultural group is of tremendous importance to the other groups because its members make up the largest consuming market for the products of the other occupational groups. A still more important function of the agricultural group is the continual replenishing with its over-flow population, the city population making up the other occupational groups. From all this, it is evident that the physical, mental and moral well being of the human family depends greatly on the material and spiritual well being of the agricultural group, and therefore it is to the advantage of the other vocational groups to promote the well-being and prosperity of agriculture."

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lane and family returned Wednesday night from Devil's Lake, Wis., where they spent a vacation of 10 days. While they were at the lake the region was visited by a two-inch rainfall. The corn in that section looks good. The weather was moderate, and the travelers could sleep under blankets at night.

On the return trip the Lane car missed a bad accident by only a few inches. A few miles this side of Havana the travelers met a car that was weaving back and forth across the road. Mr. Lane was forced off the slab and was about to meet the other machine head on, when it swerved back onto the concrete. He watched the car after it passed and it continued the same irregular course.

Man Decides He Had Better Buy Himself Bicycle

Bellingham, Aug. 9.—(AP)—A year ago William S. Smith, arrested on a reckless driving charge, decided a motorcycle was less apt to get him into trouble with the law.

Yesterday he was convicted in the court of Police Judge Ralph Olson of riding his motorcycle while intoxicated.

He informed the court he will purchase a bicycle.

On the return trip the Lane car missed a bad accident by only a few inches. A few miles this side of Havana the travelers met a car that was weaving back and forth across the road. Mr. Lane was forced off the slab and was about to meet the other machine head on, when it swerved back onto the concrete. He watched the car after it passed and it continued the same irregular course.

JUSTICE HEAT VICTIM

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Justice of the Peace Frank D. Meyer collapsed in court today from heat prostration when the temperature reached 111 degrees, as he was preparing to hear a case against Fred Jones, accused of threatening to kill Mrs. Jones' father. When left alone with the unconscious justice, while a constable went to summon a doctor, Jones administered first aid. Meyer is in a serious condition.

The temperature was one degree short of equalling the all time record of 112, reached earlier in the summer.

FUNERAL RITES FOR ROBINSON

Atlanta, Aug. 9.—(AP)—After requiem high mass here tomorrow, the body of Wilbert Robinson, whom the baseball world knew as "Uncle Robbie," will be borne back to Baltimore, scene of his early triumphs, for burial.

The mass will be said at 9:30 a. m. at Sacred Heart Cathedral. At noon the funeral cortege will entrain for Baltimore where the nationally known baseball character is to be buried in the Bonnie Brae cemetery Saturday.

Beginning with last night when "Uncle Robbie" died of a cerebral hemorrhage, messages of sympathy and condolence have poured into the hotel where the Robinsons made their home.

Kennesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, telegraphed his sympathy to Mrs. Robinson and planned to attend the funeral along with other baseball notables.

Many of the Southern Association club leaders planned to attend the services for the man who, after a career in the big leagues, came out of retirement to help build up the Atlanta baseball club and its president.

"Uncle Wilbert," universally liked for his wit and geniality, joked until the last. He fell in his hotel room and a broken arm was first thought to be his only trouble. Even after physicians convinced him his condition was serious, he laughed.

"Imagine me getting a broken arm," he said. "Imagine that." "Make a funny story about it," he said to a newspaper man. "Say your Uncle Wilbert slipped on a banana peel."

He died a little later last night.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Harry L. Robinson, of Baltimore, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Gunther, of Spring Lake, N. J.

EUNICE POLLOCK IS BACK HOME

Maitowoc, Wis., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Eunice Pollock, whose disappearance from the University of Wisconsin five months ago precipitated a nation-wide search was back under the parental roof tonight, trying to forget the events that prompted her flight by planning resumption of her studies.

Accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pollock, she came home late last night. A letter was received from her last Friday. Her parents left for New York Sunday, found her working as a governess in the Long Island home of a wealthy couple, and prevailed upon her to come home.

Eunice, crushed when her Alpha Chi Omega Sorority sisters dismissed her from their house on the university campus for undisclosed reasons, left Madison March 17. Later the sorority girls exonerated her of the charges.

She said she did not know that an extensive search was being made for her. She read a brief item in a New York paper, but thought little of it, she said.

RECORD AT SPRINGFIELD

SYNOPSIS

The depression did not alter life at "Hawthorn," the comfortable, hospitable home of the Philip Rutledges. Caroline, their lovely daughter, entertained lavishly and the younger set swarmed there. Mrs. Rutledge spends most of her time abroad and her husband practically lives at the club. Following her mother's return from one of her trips, Caroline gives a party. The pampered Alva notes how capably her daughter has arranged everything and wishes she could feel happier about it. Caroline's parents disapprove of their daughter's fiancé, Howard Dunsen. Years ago, Howard's father bought property from Philip saying he wanted it for a leather factory and instead he went into the soap business in competition with Philip. The families have been enemies ever since. At the height of the party, Philip arrives home with the news that Howard seems genuinely shocked. Philip tells Howard and Caroline that Dunsen's next move will be to break their engagement and he suggests they talk it over. "Of course, it can't make any difference to us," Caroline tells Howard. "No," he agrees, but his voice lacks warmth.

CHAPTER III

"Do you understand it, Howard? Oh no," she added quickly as his face darkened. "I don't mean to ask if you knew it before today. But do you know what it means to father?"

"How should I know?" he countered.

"But I'm sure that everything father had was in the factory," Caroline explained. "If he's lost that we're broke—except for this house. I'd hate to part with this place, Howard."

"Yes," he said, "it is a charming house."

"I'd hate mother and father to lose it." Suddenly she uttered a gasp of dismay as a new and troubling thought came to her. "Perhaps father won't be able to remodel the farm house for us now," she cried, referring to the old dwelling on the estate, where the over-seer had lived when the owners of Hawthorn House were gentlemen farmers.

Howard answered with a show of firmness. "Really, Caro, you'll get yourself into a frightful state of nerves if you keep this up. Take it easy, get used to it before you turn it inside out."

"I can't shelve it," Caroline said tensely. "I'm like that Howard, you know. I must face issues, something drives me to it."

"But you're making me darned uncomfortable, since, as you say, my Dad had a large finger in the pie."

"But you agreed that didn't matter," she replied swiftly. "I suppose I might keep my concern for Mother and Father to myself. But what will we do, Howard? How will we face our own future?"

"I'd rather not talk about it, Caro. I'll have to think it out."

"Please let us think it out together. I'm lost, Howard; not afraid, just lost. Do you think it's true what father said about your father, I mean? Breaking us up?"

"Well," Howard said growing blunt with his mounting impatience. "If you must have it, I'm afraid it's true all right."

"But he couldn't! How could he?"

"He's taken one important step already," Howard told her. "He cut my allowance completely when I became engaged to you."

"Oh. He is hard, isn't he? And you were too sweet to tell me."

"I wasn't greatly worried about it," Howard admitted, "as he didn't threaten to disinherit me. And I've had the money my grandmother left me."

"That's why he didn't try to frighten you with threats. He knew he couldn't."

"Not so long as you were an heir," Howard said quietly, and waited for her to grasp the significance of his words. Caroline's mind was occupied in another direction, however.

"I shan't mind living on what your grandmother left you," she said.

"But Caro, it's very little," Howard declared.

"Is it enough for an apartment? Or Mother and Father might have us here—if they stay on. Would you dislike that Howard?"

"Caro, you know they have no use for me."

"They don't know you. When you're one of us they'll forget that you're Henry Dunsen's son. But I'd like the apartment if you'd prefer it—even if it's just two or three rooms and a kitchenette."

Howard said, with a sort of feeble horror: "Oh lord. With me drying the dishes, I suppose. Caro, for heaven's sake, get back into your right mind."

She looked at him, and her eyes were suddenly darkened with a think of me! Well, you are wrong—I'd have been happy to you anywhere before you said that. But at least you needn't think so contemptibly of me as to believe I'll wait for you to break our engagement."

With a gesture of scorn she stripped off his engagement ring and held it out to him.

Howard refused to take it. "Caro, be reasonable," he urged. "Wait, there might be a way. Things may not be so bad as your father thinks. You know I'm crazy about you."

"But not crazy enough to marry a poor girl," Caroline broke in with a stormy laugh. "Take your ring, Howard. There's one girl in town who hasn't seen it, and she has money enough for you."

Howard Dunsen looked to think of himself as a pretty decent sort, considering the temptations to mistakes and the pitfalls that beset the painful suspicion. "What can we do then?" she asked levelly.

"I'm sure I don't know," he answered lamely. "I haven't enough money to support us."

Caroline's voice held steady, but she could feel a tightness in her throat as she put her next question. "You haven't lost what you had from your grandmother, have you?"

"No, but it's not enough for us to live on."

"But what had you planned on, before this?"

Howard's irritation broke through his control. "See here, Caro," he said unpleasantly, "this sounds like a school boy's catechism. I must say I thought you were as sensible about money as I."

"What do you mean, Howard, sensible?" Caroline persisted.

"We've never earned any money, you or I," Howard began. "We've always had it from our parents. What would it have mattered whose parent? If I lost my allowance through marrying you would it have been more than fair that your father should provide for us?"

"So that's what you counted on—my father's support," Caroline said quietly.

"Naturally. With the house he was giving us we could have got along very well on what I have and a lift now and then. Dad wouldn't have had a club to wield over me. He'd never have given your father the satisfaction of doing more for me than he did. I'd have inherited his money some day. It's different now. If we marry he'll cut me off, and if I know you it wouldn't please you any more to be poor than it would me."

Anger flamed quickly to Caroline's cheeks. "Is that what you

path of a rich man's son. He would never have dreamed of marriage for mercenary reasons alone, but even no virtue in blindly attempting what seemed to him an impossible undertaking. He hadn't the slightest doubt that neither he nor Caroline could be happily married without sufficient means to live in their accustomed manner.

Her intimation that he would marry any girl who had wealth was an insult to his idealist conception of his character. Anger as hot and quick as her own led him to take the ring she held in rigidly extended fingers and leave the house without another word to her.

Caroline knew the moment he was gone that she had been unfair to mention Gwendolyn Hoffman. For although the girl was pretty and socially ambitious she couldn't say that Howard had ever shown her any attention. It was just that in her anger and humiliation it had popped into her head that Gwendolyn's father was said to have retired from the wholesale grocery business with one of the largest fortunes in town.

But, right or wrong about Gwendolyn, she burned with resentment toward Howard. That he could be level-headed and afraid of consequences when she was in trouble and needed him was a disappointment almost as bitter as the thought that his love for her was not nearly so great as was hers for him.

"I'd have waded through fire for him!" she said to herself as the real hurt of the quarrel began to override her anger.

Revolutionary Vet Buried in Jersey

Jerseyville, Aug. 9.—A soldier of the American Revolution, two of the Mexican War and one of the Spanish-American War are buried in one small family cemetery in English Township.

These facts were brought to light as the result of a recent decision of the Jersey County Emergency Relief organization to foster a project calling for the marking of the graves of all veterans of wars of the United States to be found in Jersey county.

The burial ground named is known as the Faulkner cemetery and is situated on the present farm occupied by Charles Faulkner in English Township, the cemetery being on Section 36.

In the graveyard lies the body of Johnathan E. Cooper, a veteran of the American Revolution. He was the father of Edna Cooper Faulkner, mother of the present occupant of the farm, Charles Faulkner.

Cooper was born in Maryland and enlisted at a very early age in a Pennsylvania regiment as a drummer boy. He served with the organization until the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. After the close of the war, Cooper was one of the many eastern residents to follow Boone into the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky.

Taking his flint lock rifle that he had carried in the later years of the revolution, Cooper went to Kentucky where he remained for some time. Then he moved into Illinois where he finally settled in Jersey county in what is now English Township. There he lived until the time of his death in 1845.

When the Mexican War broke out, Cooper's son-in-law, William Faulkner, father of Charles Faulkner, enlisted and saw active service. His brother, James Faulkner accompanied him in the enlistment. Both fought at the battle of Buena Vista under General Zachary Taylor, the conflict that later led to the nomination and election of General Taylor to the presidency of the United States.

Both of the Mexican War veterans rest in the little cemetery.

Then there is the grave of another war veteran in the cemetery. The body of Charles Schumacher who saw service in Cuba in the Spanish-American conflict rests there.

The grave of Jonathan Cooper is marked with a slab and the grave of William Faulkner also has a suitable monument. The grave of James Faulkner is without a marking.

Charles Faulkner stated that he has the old flint lock musket that belonged to Jonathan Cooper. The latter presented the weapon to his grandson and for a number of years the gun was kept by the late A. F. Pitt at his home in Jerseyville. Following the death of Pitt, Charles Faulkner took the gun into his possession.

The old gun was discharged by the use of a flint casting its sparks into a powder pan. The process of discharging the weapon occupied so much time, that it was necessary for the one using it to keep on aiming after he had pulled the trigger.

Farm Bureau Picnic
The annual picnic of the Jersey County Farm Bureau got under way at the Jersey County Fair Grounds Wednesday morning in spite of the prevailing heat wave.

The attendance was comparable with that of other occasions and the customary horse shoe pitching contests, diamond ball games and athletic events occupied the attention of many during the morning and part of the afternoon.

The principal speaker for the annual occasion was Father George Neil of Island Grove parish. He spoke both afternoon and evening and used a series of stereoscopic views for the evening lecture. The latter address was supplementary to the talk of the afternoon.

In brief Father Neil's lecture covered "The New Rural Life."

He began at the primary unit, the individual farm families. Then he showed clearly the advantages and possibilities of organization of the individual families into occupational groups, then the groups united in a nationally functioning organization living with other similarly organized occupational groups in friendly understanding, helpful harmony, promoted and supervised by government action based on social justice and social charity.

"Agriculture," said Father Neil, "as a vocational group is not only important because of the number of people who make a living of farming, but also because this group is the producer of the food, clothing and much of the shelter material used by the other vocational groups. Furthermore, the agricultural group is of tremendous importance to the other groups because its members make up the largest consuming market for the products of the other occupational groups. A still more important function of the agricultural group is the continual replenishing with its overflow population, the city population making up the other occupational groups. From all this it is evident that the physical, mental and moral well being of the human family depends greatly on the material and spiritual well being of the agricultural group, and therefore it is to the advantage of the other vocational groups to promote the well-being and prosperity of agriculture."

Treasury intends to speed its silver buying program. This contributed apparently to the rise in commodity and stock markets.

Morgenthau said the treasury for the present at least would continue to issue certificates based on the cost of the silver rather than the legal monetary value of $1.29 an ounce.

The law authorities but does not direct issuance at the higher figure, the use of which, with silver bought at much lower prices, would be distinctly inflationary.

The silver order followed by a little over a year the similar action calling in all gold. It differs, however, in several minor respects. Chief among them is that United States silver coins will continue to circulate legally whereas gold coins were withdrawn.

Exempt from the order also were coins of foreign nations, or silver owned by foreign governments and central banks, and silver in fabricated articles.

Newly mined metal will continue to be taken in by the treasury at 64 1-2 cents an ounce. Silver that may be imported is also untouched, as well as that in the nation's island possessions.

Treasury officials said approximately 45,000,000 ounces were held in depositories recognized by the metal exchanges. They added any figure as to that hoarded elsewhere would be only a guess.

Testimony before congressional committees at the last session estimated the total in the country at between 150,000,000 and 1,200,000,000 ounces.

The total amount of silver which must be brought to the treasury at 25-78 ratio with gold has been estimated at around 1,300,000,000 ounces.

For weeks there has been urging additional expansion of the currency. He said not long ago that he planned to direct his efforts toward building inflationist sentiment in the country and among members of the next congress.

Jubilant over developments Thomas said to his mind the nationalization was "like finding a mountain of gold."

He said the purchase of an additional billion ounces of silver would be necessary to complete the purchase.

program begun by the silver act. "And unless buying is done in a hurry," he said, "or even if it is, I don't think the billion ounces will be available. The price will either go above $1.29 cents an ounce—when purchases are to cease—or the metal will not be available."

WILL COLLECT LIQUOR TAXES

Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The government is going to collect taxes on all liquor sold in dry states, and the states may do as they please about arresting the taxpayers.

This, in effect, was disclosed today by Secretary Morgenthau as he dusted off for use an eight-year old law providing for the imposition of a $1,000 federal excise tax on anybody engaging in the liquor business in violation of state laws.

The tax collection records of the alcohol tax unit will be open to inspection, he pointed out, and should be a big help to local and state authorities that want to use them.

"The collectors of internal revenue have no option under the law except to collect all tax relating to liquor, whether in wet or dry territory," Morgenthau said.

RATTLESNAKE BITES PREACHER

Sylvia, N. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—A 39-year-old holiness preacher lay near death in a mountain cabin tonight—victim of his attempt to prove to his congregation that a rattlesnake could not harm a true disciple of God, but still refusing medical aid.

Albert Trester was bitten twice Sunday night during his attempted demonstration. As the fangs found their mark in the arm which held the mountain rattler aloft before his flock, his clerical demeanor left him and he fled screaming to the churchyard, where he rolled in agony on the ground.

Vehemently refusing to see a physician, he likewise refused the old standby of mountaineers in such cases—corn whisky.

"Whisky only makes the snake madder and the poison will go deeper," he cried. "I am a disciple of God, he will take care of it."

His right arm was swollen to several times normal size tonight. The skin is bursting as the poison works. His neck and back are puffed and his tongue is so swollen he can hardly speak. He takes food from a spoon in the hands of his followers.

BUSINESS STRIKE

New York, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Protesting against the removal of NRA supervision over prices and charges in the service trades, 35,000 places of business closed this afternoon in a half-day "strike," and tonight a mass meeting was held at Carnegie hall.

The demonstration was to enlist support in the campaign of the New York service trades for legislation permitting cities of 25,000 population or over to establish fair practice and price codes under licensing provisions.

Federal supervision of the service trades was abandoned some time ago after recovery administration officials decided they could not enforce the provisions adequately.

TALKS TO PRESIDENT

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(AP)—The only person not an official to talk to President Roosevelt on his brief stop here today was Miss Lillian Donevan whom the president met when both were patients in Warm Springs.

She went to the train on crutches wearing a brace on her leg, and was assisted into the car for a short talk with her friend, the president.

The home of John and Priscilla Allen still stands in Duxbury, Mass., and it is a monument to Capt. Miles.

STRONG SOIL WILL SAVE WHEAT CROP FROM CHINCH BUGS

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 9.—Wheat production, which has returned Illinois farmers as much as 20 to 30 million dollars in recent, more normal years, need not be abandoned because of the heavy chinch bug infestation this year and the threat of damage in 1935, in the opinion of the State Natural History Survey and the agricultural department at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

If wheat that is seeded this fall is put on the more productive soils and the season is favorable, it will yield fair to good crops even under heavy infestations, it is said. This is borne out by observations made at many points during chinch bug outbreaks in the past and from a check on many Illinois farms in recent weeks. Care should be taken, however, to have a well-prepared seed bed, to seed a variety adapted to the locality and to plant late enough to avoid the Russian fly.

If winter wheat, spring wheat, rye and barley were entirely discontinued next year in any area of the state and all the small grain acreage planted to oats, the latter crop would be heavily infested. Should weather conditions prove favorable, the chinch bugs would destroy the oats. In many sections of Illinois this year the oats were just as heavily infested as the wheat fields.

For the coming season, however, it would seem a poor practice to sow winter wheat except on strong land. On worn soils the crop is almost sure to be heavily infested and more or less damaged by the chinch bugs. Furthermore, if the chinch bug threat continues, it would be inadvisable to sow spring wheat or barely in areas where there is a heavy infestation, since these crops are especially susceptible to chinch bug attack.

In the northeastern part of the state, including Will, Kendall, Grundy, LaSalle and adjoining counties, the winter wheat during the past season was largely killed by the over-wintering bugs. This would not have occurred in a normal year with anything like an average spring rainfall. On the whole, in all other sections of the state the farmer planting winter wheat on strong ground has had far better returns from this acreage than from other small grains.

REPAY LOAN

Washington, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Russia has repaid the $2,803,444 loan made to her a year ago by the Reconstruction Corporation to purchase American cotton.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the corporation, announced the repayment today. He said the notes, which were for 12 months from the date of shipment, began maturing July 12, the last payment falling due August 3.

Every note, he said, was met on the day it was due.

Jones also said China, which borrowed approximately $19,000,000 to buy cotton, wheat and flour, has been meeting her payments promptly as they fall due.

GREET ROOSEVELT

Highwood, Ill., Aug. 9.—(AP)—There was a mighty shout of "prosperity!" today when President Roosevelt's train went through here.

Nearly 5,000 persons lined the tracks and as the train passed they lifted high steins of beer donated by a tavern keeper. The president smiled from his car and waved.

OCEAN VOYAGE ENDS QUICKLY

Flagler Beach, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Alfred Lastinger's attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean in a 10 foot sailboat ended today 20 miles north of his starting point after a desperate race for shore in the badly leaking vessel.

"It was just a tough break," said the 23 year old sailor, exhausted after two days of almost continuous pumping. "You can say I've already made plans to repair the Miss Florida and try it again about June 1 of next year."

The tiny boat was sighted about three miles from shore today by Captain C. D. Toler of the Flagler Beach coast guard station. He dispatched a coast guard crew to Lastinger's aid.

Lastinger said he had sailed about 75 miles into the Atlantic when water began to pour through several cracks. He turned about and headed for shore, pumping steadily. Last night he said, the water had risen so far he thought it necessary to throw out his supplies.

FDR Highlights

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Highlights of President Roosevelt's address today:

In one year and five months the people of the United States have received at least a partial answer to their demands for action and neither the demand nor the action has reached the end of the road."

"There is no lack of confidence on the part of those business men, farmers and workers who clearly read the signs of times, sound economic improvement comes from the improved conditions of the whole population and not a small fraction thereof."

"This government intends no injury to honest business."

"The spreading out of opportunity ought not to consist of robbing Peter to pay Paul. . . . We are concerned with the multiplication of wealth through co-operative action—wealth in which all can share."

"We who support this New Deal do so because it is a square deal and because it is essential to the preservation of security and happiness of a free society."

"Confidence is returning to our agricultural population who in spite of x x x drought x x x are giving understanding co-operation to practical planning and the ending of useless tickering and sectional thinking of the past."

"Confidence is returning to manufacturers x x x comparing the black ink of today with red ink of many years gone by; to the workers x x x to men and women whose willing hands found no work; to youngsters sated x x x (from) child labor; to bankers and financiers and business men x x x home owners x x x and small investors."

"Man is fighting also those forces which disregard human co-operation and human rights in seeking that kind of individual profit which is gained at the expense of his fellows."

"Only through the submerging of individual desires into unselfish and practical co-operation can civilization grow."

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

An outstanding novel of the year recently added to the Public Library is MacKinlay Kantor's "Long Remember." A stirring, utterly American book of men, women and war, "Long Remember" is undoubtedly the best historical novel of the spectacular genre in American literature. Mr. Kantor contrives to give us the movement of the whole spectacle of the Battle of Gettysburg in a series of sharply drawn scenes, ably presented through the observation of one man, the hero. As a spectacle of war the book has no equal.

The spectacle of the battle is woven on a tapestry of fiction. Fiction naturally it is, but the truth could hardly be more compelling than this story.

The first part of the novel moves slowly. Returning from the Middle West to his former home in Gettysburg, owing to his grandfather's death, Daniel Bale finds himself involved in a love affair with the wife of one of his friends, Tyler Fanning. It is 1863 and Tyler is away at war, a Union officer with the Army of the Potomac. Daniel is a student of German philosophy, a pacifist, and uninterested in the issues of the war.

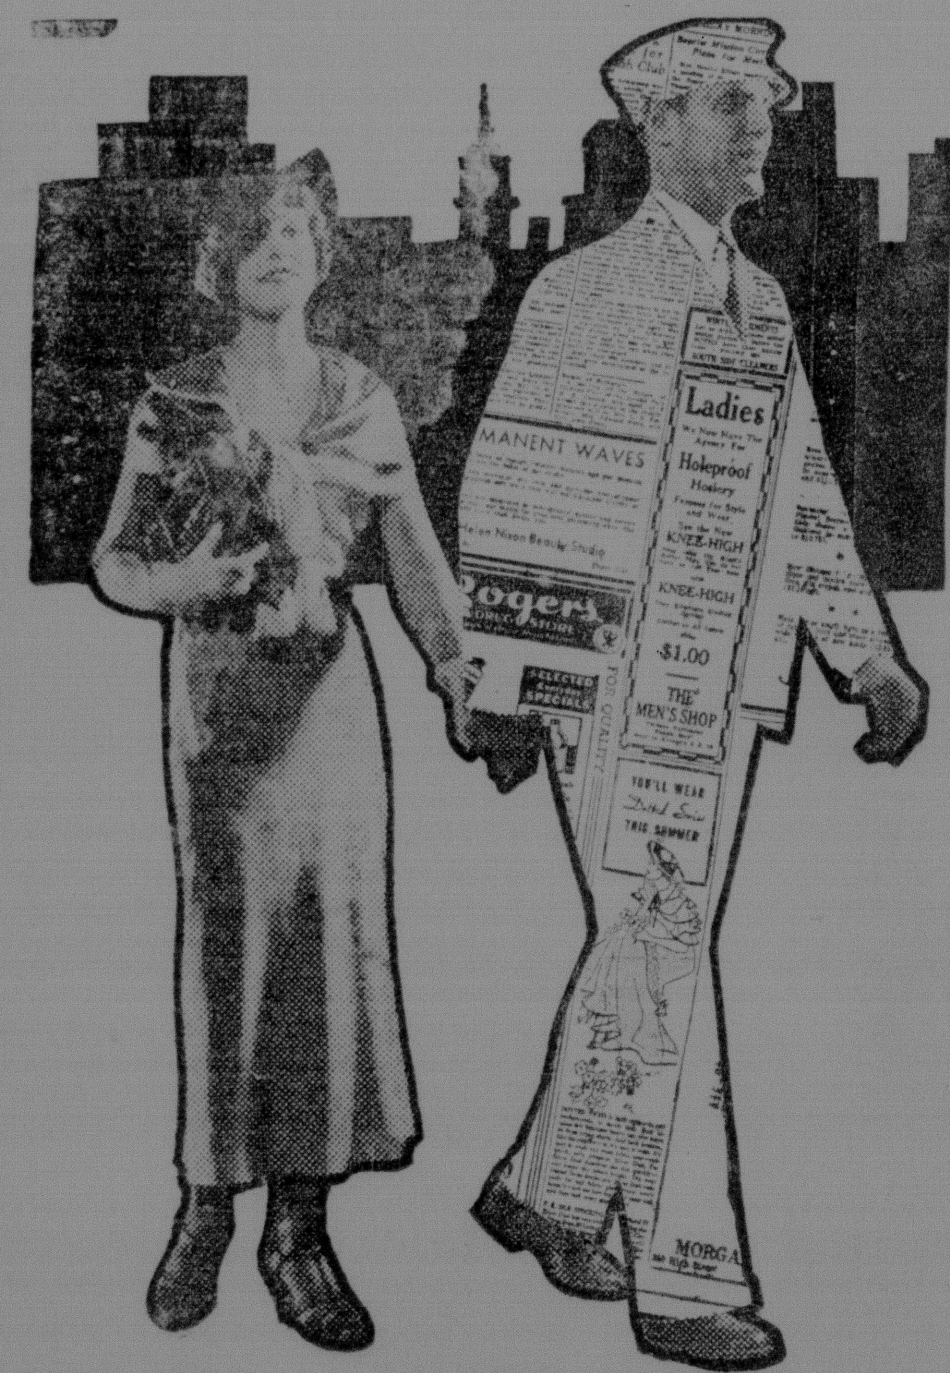

His love affair with Mrs. Fanning and the Battle of Gettysburg reach a climax simultaneously. The combined effect of the reaction of his love for Mrs. Fanning and the spectacle of the battle upon him alter his attitude toward life, and at the end of the three days, the length of time the story consumes, Daniel is marching away to the war.

It is a novel of power and merit. Few books ever written unite, so well as this, the look and smell of battle, the gathering of two armies, the clash and the sullen separation. Unlike most novels of war, Mr. Kantor's is impartial. The southern army as well as the northern army is only a groping group of men blindly doing the bidding of an elemental force. The book is a tract against war, and its effect, power as it is, is the effect of pathos and bewilderment.

Marconi Guides 'Ghost' Ship From Land

There was no skipper at the wheel when the trim yacht Elettra plowed her way accurately through the waters (as shown below) off Santa Margherita Ligure, Italy. The navigator, Guglielmo Marconi, was on land, making his trim craft obey his every whim by micro-radio waves flashed from his hotel, on the roof of which may be seen the circular sending apparatus. This feat is held Marconi's most notable achievement since he invented the wireless telegraph.

HOG PRICES TOUCH NEW HIGH OF YEAR

NEW HIGH OF YEAR

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Hog prices rose to a new peak of $5.40 per hundred weight today, ten months from the time hogs previously sold as high. The 1933 peak figure was set on October 3 at $5.55, which also duplicated the 1932 top price.

The fact that today's prices must be added to the $2.25 processing tax paid by packers to government, which was not the case prior to November last year, indicates how much hog prices actually have improved. Current average an atop market prices plus the taxes, are now higher than at any time in three years.

Continued indifferent demand in the fresh-meat markets in principal population centers failed to have much effect. Receipts at the leading centers have expanded only slightly over the previous week when they had run up to a record.

slightly over the previous week when a strike here held supplies to a minimum. Packing houses received 7,000 hogs on consignment but they were in the market for more. Choice 31 to 310 pound offerings cleared at $5.25 to $5.35. The total supply on sale was 12,600.

Although a meager supply of good prices that were steady, $7.19 upward for the cattle market. General was weak to 25 cents lower. The extreme top paid for light steers, $6.04. There being no strictly choice heavy beefs offered. Extreme heat was bearish factor. Cattle supplies totaled 14,000, including 6,000 on the government account.

Fat lambs were fully steady, natives at $7.75. The supply of 10,000 was larger than had been expected.

INFERIOR MELONS SPOIL SALES FOR ILLINOIS GROWERS

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 7.—Illinois melon growers, who in some years have produced more than $400,000 worth of cantaloupe and watermelons for market, cannot afford to sell poor quality specimens, in the opinion of J. W. Lloyd, chief in fruit and vegetable marketing at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

This is particularly true when the melons are to be sold locally through a roadside market where the amount of business done depends largely upon working up a regular trade to the sales also made repeatedly to the same persons. A roadside market near the farm is one of the best places to dispose of homegrown melons, but unless only high quality melons are sold, there is little hope for repeat sales and a continuous trade.

Melons are not eaten especially for their food value but because of their appealing taste, says Dr. Lloyd. If they are lacking in quality, their power of appeal ceases to exist. One poor-quality melon sold to a customer early in the season may spoil his appetite for melons for two or three weeks, while a poor-quality melon later on will probably close the season so far as that customer is concerned.

In spite of the grower's efforts to produce a uniform crop of good melons, some vines will weaken from various causes, and a weak vine does not produce a good-quality melon. Furthermore, after the melon harvest has progressed for a few weeks, all the vines are likely to become somewhat weakened and the melons deteriorate in quality. Some growers are tempted to continue picking and selling after this stage is reached in order to extend the marketing season. This is a doubtful practice.

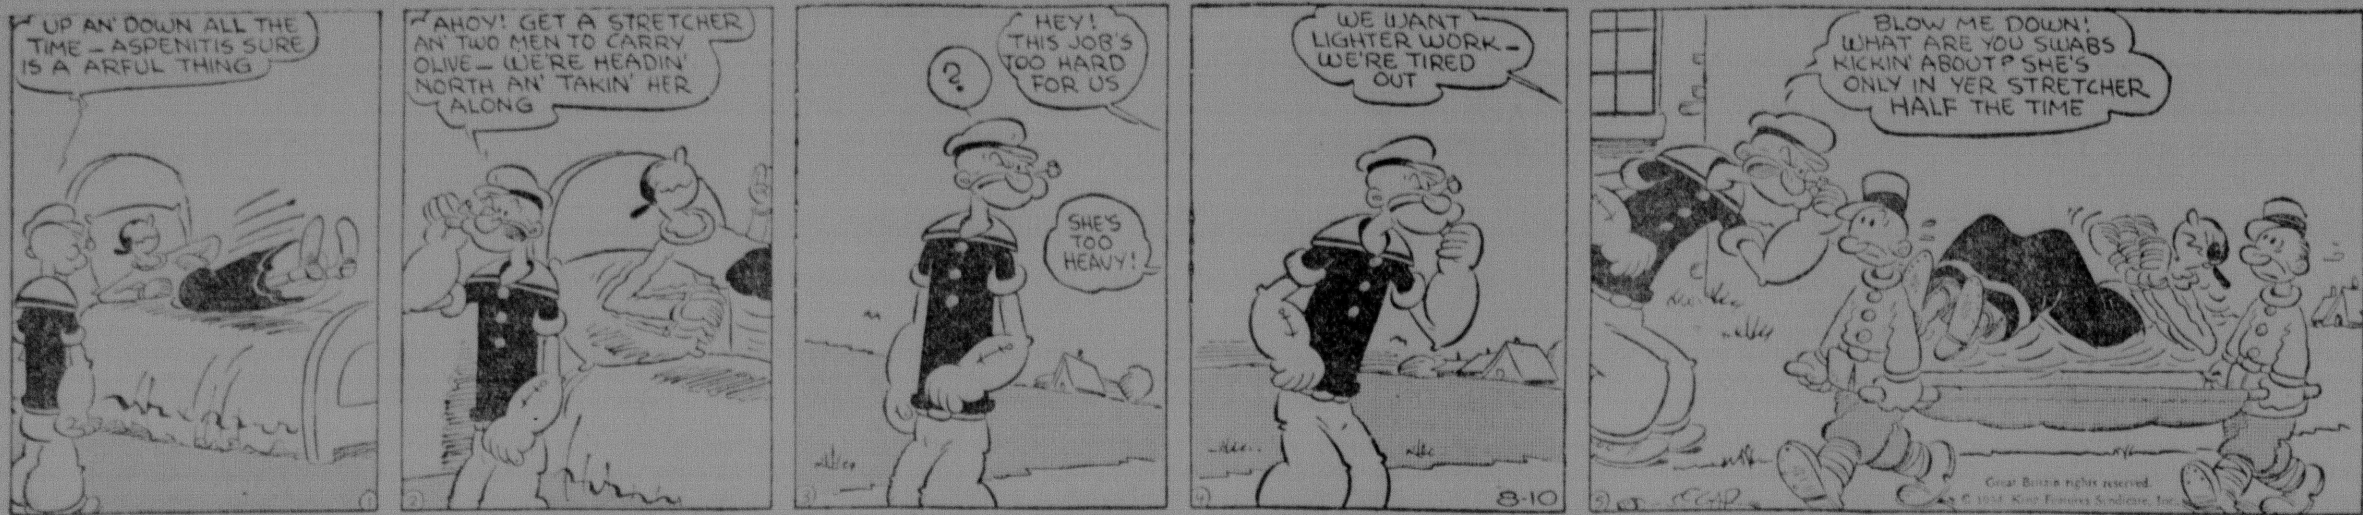

A much better way of extending the season, suggests Dr. Lloyd, is to prepare for the situation in advance. Plant at least two patches of melons, one of an early variety and the other a later-maturing kind. Or, a grower may make two plantings of the same variety at different times. This will make it possible to supply melons of a high quality over a much longer season.

Regardless of all possible precautions, there are likely to be a few inferior melons. But no matter what the cause of their poor quality, all such melons should be discarded as culls to avoid ruining the market for good melons, it is emphasized.

INFERIOR MELONS SPOIL SALES FOR ILLINOIS GROWERS

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 7.—Illinois melon growers, who in some years have produced more than $400,000 worth of cantaloupe and watermelons for market, cannot afford to sell poor quality specimens, in the opinion of J. W. Lloyd, chief in fruit and vegetable marketing at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

This is particularly true when the melons are to be sold locally through a roadside market where the amount of business done depends largely upon working up a regular trade to the sales also made repeatedly to the same persons. A roadside market near the farm is one of the best places to dispose of homegrown melons, but unless only high quality melons are sold, there is little hope for repeat sales and a continuous trade.

Melons are not eaten especially for their food value but because of their appealing taste, points out Dr. Lloyd. They are lacking in quality, their power of appeal ceases to exist. One poor quality melon sold to a customer early in the season may spoil his appetite for melons for two or three weeks, while a poor quality melon later on will probably close the season so far as that customer is concerned.

In spite of the grower's efforts to produce a uniform crop of good melons some vines will weaken from various causes, and a weak vine does not produce a good quality melon. Furthermore, after the melon harvest has progressed for a few weeks, all the vines are likely to become somewhat weakened and the melons deteriorate in quality. Some growers are tempted to continue picking and selling after this stage is reached in order to extend the marketing season. This is a doubtful practice.

A much better way of extending the season, suggests Dr. Lloyd, is to prepare for the situation in advance. Plant at least two patches of melons, one of an early variety and the other a later-maturing kind. Or, a grower may make two plantings of the same variety at different times. This will make it possible to supply melons of a high quality over a much longer season.

Regardless of all possible precautions, there are likely to be a few inferior melons. But no matter what the cause of their poor quality, all such melons should be discarded as culls to avoid ruining the market for good melons, it is emphasized.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XLIV

"Just a second, Mr. Nesbit," she said and lifted the receiver to her ear. "Mr. Nesbit's secretary speaking."

"Mary Faith? This you?" It was Kim's mother's voice, and at the sound of it Mary Faith started violently. She had not heard from her in several months.

"Yes, Mother Farrell," she forgot, in her surprise, that Kim's mother was no longer Mother Farrell but "Mrs. Thatcher," as she called herself.

"Doctor and I wondered whether you could stop in here when you leave your office tonight," she was saying. "We wanted to talk to you about Kimberley. He's here with us. He's been very ill, you know."

"No, I didn't know it," Mary Faith sat down in her chair. "What's been wrong with him?"

"Pneumonia." And they had never let her know!

"He's much better now, of course," the smooth soft voice at the other end of the wire ran on, and Mary Faith seemed to be listening to it with every fiber of her body. "Much better. And Doctor and I don't like to bother you at this time. But certain things have come up in the last day or two, and we feel that we can't settle them without your help."

"Oh, what did the woman mean? Why didn't she say plainly and clearly what was wrong instead of talking about certain things that had come up. . . . Mary Faith couldn't imagine what these certain things could be."

"I'll be right out," she said and hung up the receiver for a second. Then she took it down again and began to rattle the hook up and down to attract Miss Gilday's attention in the outer office.

"Will you please call a taxi for me right away," Miss Kelly said, she asked when Miss Kelly answered her.

Then she looked up at Mark Nesbit once more.

"My husband has been sick—terribly sick—with pneumonia," she said to him in a voice that was a warning cry. "And they've never let me know—he's people! Not until just now."

She began to put the papers and pencils on her desk into a drawer and to pull the dust cover over her typewriter, while Mark Nesbit stood and watched her, his hands stuck in his pockets and his lips pursed up as if he were trying to whistle.

"I'm going out to him. Do you mind?" she asked, slamming the drawer and turning the key in its lock.

"Of course not. I'll go downstairs with you and wait until the cab comes," Mark Nesbit said quietly. He held the door open while she took down her wraps from the coat-tree in the corner and put them on.

The people in the outer office looked up curiously as the two of them came out of the little room and started down the stairs that led to the first floor.

Mary Faith barely saw them. No one truly existed for her at that moment but Kim. Her thoughts flew ahead of her to Dr. Thatcher's tall old-fashioned house in Bleeker Street, where Kim lay ill.

"I could have driven you out in my car," she heard Mark Nesbit say to her, but it was a minute or two before his words carried any message to her brain.

"The taxi's all right," she said then, and as she spoke she saw it drive up before the building and heard the scream of its brakes as the driver jammed them on. "But thanks—you're very good."

At the door of the taxicab she spoke to him again. "You don't know how sorry I am about—all this, Mr. Nesbit. I've told you before that you're the kindest person I've ever known. Only, you see—"

"I see, I see, Mary Faith," he said.

to her and helped her into the cab. Through the frosty glass of the window she saw him smile and nod his head as the car rolled past him. And when it turned the corner a minute later he was still standing on the snowy curb looking after it.

Kim lay in a big carved walnut bed in a high-ceilinged bedroom in Dr. Thatcher's house. His fingers were locked across the top of his broad chest, and his gray eyes, a bit sunken but brilliant as always, went from Mary Faith who sat beside his bed to his mother who stood at the foot of it.

Mrs. Dr. Thatcher, in a housedress made of elephant's breath gray voile, was doing most of the talking. She had spent twenty minutes telling Mary Faith how she had been taking care of Kim for the past three weeks, and now she was explaining just why she had sent for her.

"Doctor had Kimberley's chest X-rayed about six weeks ago—just a while before he came down with this pneumonia," she said solemnly and impressively. As Mrs. Dr. Thatcher she tried to be much more impressive than she had ever tried to be during the days of her widowhood and grass-woodhood. "And Doctor wasn't very happy about his health then. But now that he's been so ill he's downright uneasy about him, with the cold weather coming on and all, don't you know? He's just afraid of what might happen if Kimberley stayed here. He might develop into a regular invalid—or even worse things could happen."

Mary Faith's big frightened eyes widened.

"Doctor thinks—in fact, Doctor says that he's got to get right out of this climate right away," Kim's mother continued. "He thinks he'd better go to New Mexico or Arizona—one of those dry climates. A winter there will put him into fine shape, he says. He's sure of that. Only you see, Mary Faith, we just don't know how to manage it. Kimberley's not well enough to work, and we aren't rich enough to pay his bills out there and provide a nurse for him too. . . . and he'll have to have one for a little while. We thought perhaps you could find something to do out there—something to earn a little money."

She gazed at Mary Faith questioningly and then remarked, "I'd go with him, but I don't see how I can leave Doctor for so many months. Ella said she'd go but you know she hasn't any money. . . . We can scrape together the railroad fare for two people, but that's all we can do, Doctor and I."

She turned and lumbered toward the door, bumping against the marble-topped table in the center of the room as she went.

"I'll let you two talk it over," she said, and closed the door very slowly as if she meant to make as little noise as possible. Kimberley's head ached and he watched it swing shut, a frown between his eyes.

"She's taken awfully good care of me, but she makes me so doggone nervous!" he said irritably. "You know—she's all over the place at once. And she drops things and makes more noise than a mule on a tin roof."

"Kim, she's your mother and she loves the very air I breathe," said Mary Faith. "You shouldn't talk about her. She can't help making noise. She's a large person and she's not as young as she once was."

He moved his shoulders impatiently against the pillows. "Nobody loves the very air I breathe. Nobody but you," he said drily. "You notice she's not going out west with me, don't you? She's staying right here with Doc. And you're elected for the job."

"You know how willing I am to take it, Kim. But how about you? How do you feel about going out west with me?"

"If I didn't feel all right about it"

do you suppose I'd have let them send you today?"

He grinned up at her suddenly. His quick flashing grin that instantly made him look his reckless debonaire self.

"You are still worrying about Claire Maldon?" he asked. "If you are you can cut it out. I haven't seen her for a couple of months. I haven't even thought of her—very often. They refused her a divorce here and she's gone out to Reno to try to get one there."

He got up on one elbow. "You know what I've been thinking of the last week while I've been lying here, Mary Faith?—Remember those snapshots that Jean Bartlett sent you? The pictures of those mountains out in Arizona with all the fields lying along the base of them—and the pepper trees and the acres and acres of vegetable gardens?—Well, I've been thinking it must be a pretty grand place to live in. I'm sick of soot and smoke and office buildings, Mary Faith. Maybe if we go out there I can get a job after a while, and we won't want to come back here."

And then Mary Faith was on her knees beside him, with her arms right around him and her tears warm against his cheek.

"Kim, I just knew you'd want me back again sometime—like this," she said huskily. "I told you six months ago that you would, didn't I? And you thought I was wrong, but I was right, wasn't I?"

"Sure, you've been right about everything, and I've been wrong. I've wondered a thousand times, lying here, how you could have taken me back so many times after I'd left you and stayed away from you for months at a crack. . . . Gosh, there's not another woman in the world who'd do it, Mary Faith."

"Oh, yes, there are. There are millions of women just like me, Kim." She pressed him down upon his pillows and smoothed his hair back from his forehead. "Don't you suppose there are other husbands who get tired of their wives every now and then, and tired of all their responsibilities? And don't you suppose their wives take them back? Of course, they do."

She laughed a little shakily. "And you'll probably get sick and tired of me again, Kim. But it won't tire me the way it used to. I'll just wait for you to come to your senses. . . . I'll know that sooner or later everything will be all right again, just as it is now."

For her everything was all right then. Without any work in sight or any way of earning money, without any real plans for the future, with nothing but the promise of two hundred dollars' railroad fare for herself and Kim and the baby, she still knew that everything would be all right. She would make things come right, somehow or other. . . .

"Kim," she said, "I think I'll run downstairs and telephone a wire to Jean Bartlett to tell her that we're coming out to Phoenix. She's been wanting me to come out—and she'll probably be glad to take us in until we find a place of our own."

Mrs. Puckett, too, Mrs. Puckett would probably lend them some money and they would surely be able to pay it back after a while. . . . Mary Faith felt power and hope stirring within her as she braced herself for the long struggle ahead.

She got up from the floor and walked across the room on her way downstairs to the telephone. At the door she turned for a minute and glanced back at Kim who lay watching her with a look of utter contentment on his face.

"By faith the walls of Jericho fell down," Kim, she said to him. "That was a long time ago—but it's still happening every day."

And she closed the door and went away while he wondered just what Mary Faith had meant by that.

"MARY FAITH" by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XLIV

"Just a second, Mr. Nesbit," she said and lifted the receiver to her ear. "Mr. Nesbit's secretary speaking."

"Mary Faith? This you?" It was Kim's mother's voice, and at the sound of it Mary Faith started violently. She had not heard from her in several months.

"Yes, Mother Farrell." She forgot, in her surprise, that Kim's mother was no longer Mother Farrell but "Mrs. Thatcher," as she called herself.

"Doctor and I wondered whether you could stop in here when you leave your office tonight," she was saying. "We wanted to talk to you about Kimberley. He's here with us. He's been very ill, you know."

"No, I didn't know it," Mary Faith sat down in her chair. "What's been wrong with him?"

"Pneumonia." And they had never let her know!

"He's much better now, of course," the smooth soft voice at the other end of the wire ran on, and Mary Faith seemed to be listening to it with every fiber of her body. "Much better. And Doctor and I don't like to bother you at this time. But certain things have come up in the last day or two, and we feel that we can't settle them without your help."

Oh, what did the woman mean? Why didn't she say plainly and clearly what was wrong instead of talking about certain things that had come up. . . . Mary Faith couldn't imagine what those certain things could be.

"I'll be right out," she said and hung up the receiver for a second. Then she took it down again and began to rattle the hook up and down to attract Miss Gilday's attention in the outer office.

"Will you please call a taxi for me right away, Miss Kelly?" she asked when Miss Kelly answered her.

Then she looked up at Mark Nesbit once more.

"My husband has been sick—terribly sick—with pneumonia," she said to him in a voice that was a warning cry. "And they've never let me know—his people! Not until just now."

She began to put the papers and pencils on her desk into a drawer and to pull the dust cover over her typewriter, while Mark Nesbit stood and watched her, his hands stuck in his pockets and his lips pursed up as if he were trying to whistle.

"I'm going out to him. Do you mind?" she asked, slamming the drawer and turning the key in its lock.

"Of course not. I'll go downstairs with you and wait until the cab comes," Mark Nesbit said quickly. He held the door open while she took down her wraps from the coat-tree in the corner and put them on.

The people in the outer office looked up curiously as the two of them came out of the little room and started down the stairs that led to the first floor.

Mary Faith barely saw them. No one truly existed for her at that moment but Kim. Her thoughts flew ahead of her to Dr. Thatcher's tall old-fashioned house in Blecker Street, where Kim lay ill.

"I could have driven you out in my car," she heard Mark Nesbit say to her, but it was a minute or two before his words carried any message to her brain.

"The taxi's all right," she said then, and as she spoke she saw it drive up before the building and heard the scream of its brakes as the driver jammed them on. "But thanks—you're very good."

At the door of the taxicab she spoke to him again. "You don't know how sorry I am about—all this, Mr. Nesbit. I've told you before that you're the kindest person I've ever known. Only, you see—"

"I see, I see, Mary Faith," he said.

to her and helped her into the cab. Through the frosty glass of the window she saw him smile and nod his head as the car rolled past him. And when it turned the corner a minute later he was still standing on the snowy curb looking after it.

Kim lay in a big carved walnut bed in a big high-ceilinged bedroom in Dr. Thatcher's house. His fingers were locked across the top of his broad chest, and his gray eyes, a bit sunken but brilliant as always, went from Mary Faith who sat beside his bed to his mother who stood at the foot of it.

Mrs. Dr. Thatcher, in a housedress made of elephant's breath gray voile, was doing most of the talking. She had spent twenty minutes telling Mary Faith how she had been taking care of Kim for the past three weeks, and now she was explaining just why she had sent for her.

"Doctor had Kimberley's chest X-rayed about six weeks ago—just a while before he came down with this pneumonia," she said solemnly and impressively. As Mrs. Dr. Thatcher she tried to be much more impressive than she had ever tried to be during the days of her widowhood and grass-widowhood. "And Doctor wasn't very happy about his health then. But now that he's been so ill he's downright uneasy about him, with the cold weather coming on and all, don't you know? He's just afraid of what might happen if Kimberley stayed here. He might develop into a regular invalid—or even worse things could happen."

Mary Faith's big frightened eyes widened.

"Doctor thinks—in fact, Doctor says that he's got to get right out of this climate right away," Kim's mother continued. "He thinks he'd better go to New Mexico or Arizona—one of those dry climates. A winter there will put him into fine shape, he says. He's sure of that. Only you see, Mary Faith, we just don't know how to manage it. Kimberley's not well enough to work, and we aren't rich enough to pay his bills out there and provide a nurse for him too. . . . And he'll have to have one for a little while. We thought perhaps you could find something to do out there—something to earn a little money."

She gazed at Mary Faith questioningly and then remarked, "I'd go with him, but I don't see how I can leave Doctor for so many months. Ella said she'd go but you know she hasn't any money. . . . We can scrape together the railroad fare for two people, but that's all we can do, Doctor and I."

She turned and lumbered toward the door, bumping against the marble-topped table in the center of the room as she went.

"I'll let you two talk it over," she said, and closed the door very slowly as if she meant to make as little noise as possible. Kim raised his head a trifle and watched it swing shut, a frown between his eyes.

"She's taken awfully good care of me, but she makes me so doggone nervous!" he said irritably. "You know—she's all over the place at once. And she drops things and makes more noise than a mule on a tin roof."

"Kim, she's your mother and she loves the very air you breathe," said Mary Faith. "You shouldn't talk about her. She can't help making noise. She's a large person and she's not as young as she once was."

He moved his shoulders impatiently against the pillows. "Nobody loves the very air I breathe. Nobody but you," he said drily. "You notice she's not going out west with me, don't you? She's staying right here with Doc. And you're elected for the job."

Fourteen times she told the jury she trusted with the man she met at a country dance. And on several of their clandestine meetings they engaged in intimacies, she admitted.

BORAH SPEAKS
Meridian, Idaho, Aug. 9.—(P)—Senator William E. Borah denouncing the administration crop production program tonight as joining "with the chicken bugs, the boll weevil, the locusts, the storms and the drought in making some of the things for which millions are nightly praying."

Such a program, he asserted, is "contrary to every phase" of President Roosevelt's political philosophy. Speaking in a farming community 15 miles from Boise in which he has in years past inaugurated several of his campaigns for re-election, the senator declared crop reduction was not necessary to save the farmer.

Instead, he urged termination of monopoly protection from unjust freight rates, and provisions of a sound and sufficient currency system.

All Greene Records For Heat Broken

Mercury Soars To 116 Degrees; Other News From Greene

Carrollton, August 9.—All records of heat were broken here Wednesday when the mercury showed 116 degrees in the shade at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday 105 degrees were recorded, and the temperature stayed over 90 all night. Early Wednesday the mercury climbed rapidly until at noon it had reached 110 degrees and continued the climb all afternoon. The sun blazed unmercifully all day and the wind that was stirring fell as if it had come off a furnace.

Even shade trees are drying and the water situation is growing more serious each day as well as the heat in this vicinity gives out. Wednesday night was the hottest night thus far this summer, the minimum temperature for the night being 92 at 4 a. m. Thursday when the mercury again began its upward march. Persons who have been in good health are beginning to weaken under the continued heat, and those who have been ill are having a hard time as the past three nights were so hot that sleep was impossible. Warnings are again given about fires as grass and almost every thing inflammable is so dry that the heat of the sun is almost enough to start fires, persons should use every precaution in the handling of fire.

Answer Fire Alarm
At 9:30 p. m. Wednesday, the fire department was called to the lumber yards of Walter A. Brown on the C. & A. R. R. and North and South Main streets where they found a stubborn blaze in an open lumber shed, among a pile of 6x8 inch pine timbers after a half hour fight the fire was put out with a damage of about $100.00. Fully covered by insurance.

The fire was apparently started from either a match or cigarette carelessly dropped among some straw by a transient. A number of transients have been sleeping in the shed and had carried straw from a nearby field for beds. It was lucky that the fire started among heavy timber as they were more slow burning than lighter lumber kept in other sheds of the company. The storage tanks of the Standard Oil Co. are only about 100 feet south of the shed and if the fire had gotten out of control the eastern part of Carrollton would have probably had a very disastrous fire.

County Clerk Guy Bridgewater, Tuesday issued a marriage license to Harry Jackson and Miss Mary Barnard both of Greenfield.

Dr. Leon M. Brensburg of Chicago, visited here Friday.

Miss Lena Keyes of the local C. I. P. S. Co office visited in Springfield, Wednesday.

Mr. Dean Clough, Lawrence Powell, Carlos Morrow and Ben Mehl went to St. Louis Wednesday evening and attended the Municipal Opera at Forest Park. They are a committee from here to give the opera a few points on high class singing.

The jury in the case of John W. Smith after less than 15 minutes deliberation returned a verdict that Smith was now sane and capable of handling his own business and the present conservator Joseph Scher of White Hall was ordered removed from conservator and to return the handling of the estate to defendant John W. Smith. The case was one of the most bitterly fought cases that has come up in Greene County Court for a number of years.

John W. Smith was kept busy since Monday keeping order between Attorney Johnson of Roodhouse and Reisinger of Jerseyville. Smith had been adjudged insane May 3, 1933 in County Court and one of Smith's sons was appointed conservator. He resigned last June and Joseph Scher was appointed. It was clearly brought out that the estate had been misappropriated since the appointment of conservator and was getting into very bad shape.

New Record for Heat is Set as Mercury Soars

Thermometer Registers More Than 111 Here Thursday

Setting a new record the mercury soared to 111 degrees yesterday, the temperature registering more than one hundred degrees for the twentieth time this summer. The thermometer registered 110 degrees at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, and moved up to 111 at three o'clock in the afternoon. This is the highest temperature Jacksonville has experienced this year.

No change has been noted in the weather charts, according to information received from the Norbury Cooperative Weather Observatory. The high and low pressures areas have remained stationary as far as their effect on local weather conditions could be determined.

The most pressing of the city's problems is that of water. The huge city reservoirs, which have been estimated to contain enough water to last until the finish of the dry season, are being drawn rapidly, especially for the comfort of local authorities who already have placed bans on sprinkling lawns and washing automobiles, along with confining the hours of sprinkling on golf courses to an hour a day.

The greatest loss to the city comes from evaporation, the sizzling sun drinking up large quantities each day and carrying it away to other places where it is deposited in the form of local showers. The prospect of rain is considered distant, and when rain comes, it is expected that it will be only of the local shower variety, and will almost all be soaked into the ground before reaching the reservoirs. Until a different air condition arises, hopes of getting a rain that will increase the water level in the lakes are distant.

Added to the discomfort of the heat wave, which now has gone into its fourth day of temperatures over 100, is the dust condition caused by the long dry weather. Thoroughly ground up, fine particles of dust work their way into homes and cover carpets, furniture and fixtures with a fine almost chalk-like dust.

The danger of fire is still another problem worrying city officials. A serious large fire at the present time would put a severe crimp in the water supply, and at the same time would endanger other property.

The city apparently is accepting the heat wave with its best foot forward. Business continued to move along in regular channels, with the full force of workmen on hand at most stores. Workmen on out-of-door projects have adopted a split work shift where possible, utilizing the early morning and late afternoon hours to get in their usual number of working hours.

Meredosia, Aug. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and family, who have been living at Americus, Mo. for nearly two years, are again residents of this city, having moved here the first of the week.

Several people from here attended the picnic at St. Peter's Lutheran church near Arenzville Tuesday afternoon.

Horace Jones and family moved the first part of the week into a part of the home property in the north part of town.

The Missionary society of St. John's Lutheran church held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. J. N. Peters on Tuesday afternoon. There were fourteen members and several visitors present. During the social hour the hostess served lovely refreshments.

Opal Johnson of Godfrey, Ill., is visiting at the home of Frank Price this week.

FOUR STACKS OF WHEAT DESTROYED ON FREITAG FARM

BORAH SPEAKS
Meridian, Idaho, Aug. 9.—(P)—Senator William E. Borah denounced the administration crop production program tonight as joining "with the chin bugs, the boll weevil, the locusts, the storms and the drought in making scare the things for which millions are nightly praying."

"Such a program, he asserted, is 'contrary to every phase' of President Roosevelt's political philosophy. Speaking in a farming community 15 miles from Boise in which he has in years past inaugurated several of his campaigns for re-election, the senator declared crop reduction was not necessary to save the farmer. Instead, he urged termination of monopoly, protection from unjust freight rates, and provisions of "a sound and sufficient currency system."

All Greene Records For Heat Broken

Mercury Soars To 116 Degrees; Other News From Greene

Carrollton, August 9.—All records of heat were broken here Wednesday when the mercury showed 116 degrees in the shade at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday 105 degrees were recorded, and the temperature stayed over 90 all night. Early Wednesday the mercury climbed rapidly until at noon it had reached 110 degrees and continued the climb all afternoon. The sun blazed unmercifully all day and the wind that was stirring felt as if it had come off a furnace.

Even shade trees are drying and the water situation is growing more serious each day as well as for well in this vicinity gives out. Wednesday night was the hottest night thus far this summer, the minimum temperature for the night being 92 at 4 a. m. Thursday when the mercury again began its upward march. Persons who have been in good health are beginning to weaken under the continued heat, and those who have been ill are having a hard time, as the past three nights were so hot that sleep was impossible. Warnings are again given about fires as grass and almost every thing inflammable is so dry that the heat of the sun is almost enough to start fires, persons should use every precaution in the handling of fire.

Answer Fire Alarm
At 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, the fire department was called to the lumber yards of Walter A. Brown on the C. & A.R.R., and North and South Main streets where they found a stubborn blaze in an open lumber shed, among a pile of 6x8 inch pine timbers after a half hour fight the fire was put out with a damage of about $100.00. Fully covered by insurance.

The fire was apparently started from either a match or cigarette carelessly dropped among some straw by a transient. A number of transients have been sleeping in the shed and had carried straw from a nearby field for beds. It was lucky that the fire started among heavy timber as they were more slow burning than lighter lumber kept in other sheds of the company. The storage tanks of the Standard Oil Co., are only about 100 feet south of the shed and if the fire had gotten out of control the eastern part of Carrollton would have probably had a very disastrous fire.

County Clerk Guy Bridgewater, Tuesday issued a marriage license to Harry Jackson and Miss Mary Barton, both of Greenfield.

Smith. The case was one of the most bitterly fought cases that has come up in Greene County Court for a number of years.

County Judge H. P. Samuel, Tuesday afternoon between attorneys Johnson of Roodhouse and Reisinger of Jerseyville. Smith had been adjudged insane May 3, 1933 in County Court and one of Smith's sons was appointed conservator. He resigned last June and Joseph Scheir was appointed.
